DROWNINGS CLAIM 205

727 Persons Killed In Holiday Mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Violent deaths killed at least 727 persons during the long Independence Day holiday period.

As always, traffic accidents accounted for the greatest portion of the staggering toll, but in this holiday period the toll came far below the predicted 535.

99 Others

Late reports increased the count slightly, showing there were at least 423 persons killed in motor vehicle accidents between 6 p.m. Wednesday and midnight Sunday. Drownings during the 102-hour period took 205 lives and another 99 died in miscellaneous accidents.

The relatively low traffic toll evoked comment from Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council.

"Drivers and traffic enforcement agencies now have demonstrated that extra traffic volume and danger can be offset by extra care and effort," he said. "Motorists and traffic officers deserve a big pat on the back for a splendid job of efficient teamwork. Such an achievement just can't help but make things safer on the highways the whole year round."

The highway fatalities compared with the record traffic toll for a Fourth of July period of 491 set during the four-day holiday in 1955. The National Safety Council, in a preholiday statement, had estimated this year's toll would reach 535.

The over-all total compared with 805 accidental deaths in a three-day Fourth of July holiday observance in 1955, a record for the period. The all-time record in accidents of all types is 884, set during a four-day Christmas holiday period in 1956. The total included 706 traffic fatalities, also an all-time high for any holiday.

The traffic toll for the one-day observance last Fourth of July was 137. Seventy-seven persons drowned and 39 other were killed in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 253.

Two Of Worst

This year's traffic total compared with 378 recorded during a nonholiday period last month, covering 102 hours from 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 19, to midnight, Sunday, June 23. The survey by The Associated Press, made for comparison purposes, also showed 146 drownings and 110 deaths in other types of accidents. The over-all total was 642.

One death from fireworks was reported during the holiday period the same number as reported in 1956 and 1955. The high since World War II was 6 in 1946.

Two of the worst highway accidents during the long holiday period occurred yesterday, killing 16 persons. Nine persons lost their lives in a two-car crash near Oxford, Miss., and another head-on crash near Saugus, Calif., killed seven persons.

Negro Trucker Claims Hooded Mob Beat Him

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 27-year-old Birmingham Negro today told the Birmingham News that he was beaten by hooded white men early Sunday.

James Henry Brock, a trucking company employe, was treated at a Birmingham hospital for multiple bruises of his face, back and arms.

Brock said the incident occurred while he was on a vacation trip to the home of his parents near Prattville in Autauga County, in the Montgomery area. He said two carloads of hooded men forced him into one of their cars and drove him into a wooded area where they beat him on the back with tree limbs.

Sitting In Car

Brock quoted one of the men as saying, "Run if you want to live—and if you get back to Birmingham tell those niggers this is what we do to niggers down here."

Sheriff Clyde White said he had not received any official report of the alleged beating, but would make an investigation.

"The action definitely doesn't sound like anyone from this county could have done such a thing," White said.

Brock said he was sitting in a car in front of a friend's house with three other men when two other cars drove up. He said the white men in them shouted, "Don't move—stand still or we'll shoot."

The three companions of Brock ran while the hooded men shot at them with shotguns and pistols, he asserted. Apparently no one was hit.

Start Running

He said the men had on pale yellow overall type garments with hooded masks which covered their faces. He estimated that when they reached the spot in the woods where he was beaten there were eight or nine men present, at least five carrying shotguns.

"They kept telling me, nigger, don't move a muscle or you'll be a dead nigger," he declared. Brock said the men finally told him to get up and start running.

He said he ran until he "passed out."

Tennessee Race Trial Gets Off To Tedious Start

Knoxville, Tenn. — UP — The trial of segregationist John Kasper and 15 reluctant co-defendants opened on a tedious note today when counsel became locked with the judge for almost two hours on procedural matters.

It was agreed the defense would have 10 peremptory (without cause) challenges and the government six in the questioning of prospective jurors from a venier of 66 men.

Thomas L. Gore of the defense staff said there would be no "immediate dismissals" of the charges against any of the 16. They were accused of conspiring to prevent orderly integration of the high school at nearby Clinton, Tenn., last November in defiance of a federal court injunction.

Kasper Complains

Kasper, whiling away the time in a corridor of the federal building, complained that the other defendants had tired to get separate trials because of a special fund raised to hire lawyers other than his own.

They could provide fuel for the concurrent civil right showdown in the senate.

In fact, said the chief defense counsel, Robert L. Dobbs of Memphis, "it is my considered opinion that there may be political significance" in the coincidence of dates.

In the first concerted federal action to insure orderly school integration, the 16 were accused of conspiring to violate an injunction not to interfere with racial mixing at the nearby Clinton, Tenn., high school last November.

It was the second time up for ex-Yankee Kasper, a roaming man of many causes who is now a white supremacist. He is appealing a year's sentence for an earlier charge of violating U. S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor's same injunction in the Clinton case.

Kasper a Man Apart

Judge Taylor, son of one of Tennessee governor and a nephew of another, is presiding over the mass trial. The defendants are represented by a battery of attorneys, most of them identified

Might Decide To Unseal Affidavit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government told the Supreme Court today the Japanese woman fatally injured by GI William S. Girard on a firing range in Japan was enticed to come forward and pick up scrap metal.

Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin said "enticement and inducement" had an important bearing on the government's decision to turn over Girard for trial in Japanese courts on a manslaughter charge.

Rankin, however, told the court Girard himself has denied he induced the woman and other Japanese to come forward to gather scrap.

Reciting Facts

The eight justices, hearing arguments which will determine whether Girard will be tried by Japan, showed considerable interest in the court's considering the affidavit as Chief Justice Warren phrased it, actually an invitation for the Japanese to come forward "and pick up scrap."

Warren indicated the court might decide to unseal an affidavit submitted by the general counsel of the Defense Department reciting facts in the case, including the charge that Japanese scrap scavengers had been lured onto the range.

The affidavit is in the court's possession.

Dist. Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy, who ruled that the proposed delivery of Girard to Japan for trial would violate his constitutional rights, looked at the affidavit, but did not make it part of the lower court record.

Rankin told the Supreme Court the government has no objection to the courts considering the affidavit. Warren indicated this will be done if it becomes necessary in deciding the case.

FOR ALCOHOLICS

Seven Treatment Centers Planned

By FERMAN MORRIS
Staff Writer

The plight of the alcoholic in the past in Monroe and over Ouachita parish has often been a sad one. Authorities, legally, had only one recourse in these cases: fines and jail sentences.

A new movement is underway, however, in this region and the entire state to make a serious attempt to aid the alcoholic who wants and needs help to make the climb back to the level of useful citizen.

At present, machinery is in motion to establish seven centers over the state for the treatment, mentally, physically and psychiatrically, of the true alcoholic.

The News - Star in a survey among city and state officials found these persons very aware of the fact that the alcoholic is becoming a growing problem. They further expressed the desire that a state program to aid these persons is definitely needed.

Recurring Problem

Said State Sen. James D. Sparks of Monroe: "The alcoholic in the state is a recurring problem. Bills are introduced at every session of the State Legislature to tackle the problem of the alcoholic. Most of these, however, do not prove workable."

Alcoholics, he said, actually create mental, health and economic problems to themselves and the community.

A Monroe resident, Miss Myrtle Rodgers, is an active and enthusiastic member of the State Alcoholism commission, created by the Legislature in 1954 to attempt to solve the problem of growing alcoholism over the state.

Right Track

"I believe we are on the right track in this problem, in using the approach that the alcoholic in many cases is a person who needs understanding and should be treated as a sick person rather than shunned," Miss Rodgers pointed out.

Miss Rodgers, who was named to the commission shortly after the death of Dr. E. K. Means of Monroe, said endless research is being made by the commission into the tough problem of the alcoholic and the future in that respect looks much brighter.

Conway Included

The Conway Memorial Hospital of Monroe is included among the seven centers now being established to tackle the alcoholic problem in the state. The program provides for mental treatment centers at Southeast Louisiana State Hospital at Mandeville, Central Louisiana Hospital at Pineville and Eastern Louisiana State Hospital at Jackson. General treatment centers, in addition to the Monroe hospital, will include Huey P. Long hospital in Pineville, the Charity hospital in New Orleans, and the Charity Hospital in Shreveport.

Miss Rodgers said it will be some time before these centers are functioning at top notch capacity. The encouraging thing, she pointed out, is the fact, that a concerted and organized effort has at last been launched to offer a tangible solution to the alcoholic problem. She said the state commission will conduct its next meeting in Baton Rouge on August 9 to survey progress being made.

Legislator Acts

The alcoholic problem received serious consideration for the first time in 1948, when the legislature created the Alcoholics Rehabilitation Commission for the study of the needs for hospitals and rehabilitation programs for the alcoholic. The major step was taken last year, however, when the alcoholics commission was placed in an advisory capacity to the State De-

Mrs. Coolidge, Former First Lady, Dies

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UP)—Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, 78, a school teacher who married a country lawyer and became first lady of the United States, died today at her home here.

The widow of the late President Calvin Coolidge had been in a hospital for several weeks in February and March with heart and kidney ailments.

Her death reduced to three the number of living wives of former presidents. Surviving are Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Harry S. Truman.

Grad In 1902

Mrs. Coolidge died in her sleep. Her son, John, was at her bedside. Dr. James H. Averill said death was caused by a heart condition but that an autopsy will be performed. Mrs. Coolidge's regular physician, Dr. Hugh Tatlock, was on vacation.

Grace Goodhue was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1902 and came here to teach in a school for the deaf and dumb. In Northampton she met fellow Vermonter Calvin Coolidge, then a struggling young lawyer, and married him in 1905. He died in 1933.

A keen sports fan, Mrs. Coolidge especially loved baseball and was a staunch rooter for the Boston Red Sox. Until recent years, she was a familiar figure at Red Sox games in Boston.

6 CHARGED WITH FORGING NAMES ON REFUND CHECKS

NEW ORLEANS —UP— Six Negroes were charged today with forging signatures on $10,000 in federal income tax refund checks as U. S. secret service agents cracked down on a ring of check thieves.

Agents said the thefts occurred virtually under the shadow of Orleans parish prison.

Agent R. E. Holmes said the six persons cashed 25 stolen checks averaging $100 each.

Agents also said that more persons were to be jailed in connection with the thefts. They said the gangf simply followed mailmen and took the checks before the victim knew the checks had arrived. Many persons did not know the checks had come, agents said.

The gang forged names of the check recipients and cashed them, according to agents who worked 30 to 40 hours overtime to smash the ring.

The six persons charged were John Briggs, 23; Jules Robertson, 26; John Dye, 35; Prentiss Green, 19; Delores McCray, 2, and Norman Clark 21, according to Holmes, special agent in charge of the New Orleans office of the U. S. Secret Service.

BATTLE JOINED

Johnson Predicts Rights Revision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) forecast today that the Senate, moving toward a long and politically explosive battle over President Eisenhower's civil rights program, will revise the House - passed measure.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, said he had no particular amendments in mind. But he told reporters it is "usual" for amendments to be offered to such important bills.

"Occasionally, they will be adopted," he said in expanding a previous remark that "amendments will be offered and adopted."

Late In Day

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) was ready to move later in the day to bring the bill actually before the Senate. But Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, has not closed the door against changes in the House bill.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga) and other opponents of the measure have characterized its terms as "vicious." Most supporters have hoped to win Senate passage of the House bill without changes.

Johnson, expected to vote against the bill, said he hopes the argument over whether the Senate should take up the bill can be conducted "in an atmosphere free of invective and vindictiveness." He said he will be active to "protect the rights" of all senators, both those who oppose the bill and those who support it.

Ready To Spring

Knowland said he hopes there can be a vote sometime this week on his motion to take up the measure. He said lengthy sessions and probably a Saturday meeting are ahead.

The Senate Judiciary Committee gave evidence it intends to keep the Senate's own civil rights bill pigeonholed. Today it discussed an antitrust bill and Chairman Eastland (D-Miss) said the committee next week expects to "take up all immigration bills."

Southern foes of the legislation stood ready to spring to the attack as soon as Knowland made

New, Ominous Charges Hurled Against Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — Ominous-sounding charges piled up today against former Premier Georgi Malenkov and the so-called antiparty group ousted in the latest Kremlin purge. But Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin flew off to red-ruled Czechoslovakia in an atmosphere of confidence and gaiety.

The latest charge against Malenkov came from a Leningrad party leader who accused Stalin's former right-hand man of trying to force him to sign a forgery. This was only one voice in a swelling chorus of condemnation which already has branded Malenkov the chief organizer of Stalin's 1949 Leningrad purge. For participation in that, several security officials were executed in December 1954.

Absolute Pact

The Communist parties of the Soviet orbit joined the chorus of damnation. In Prague, with Khrushchev and Bulganin due, the official party newspaper Rude Pravo hailed "the liquidation of the antiparty group" headed by Malenkov and V. M. Molotov.

"The Soviet comrades come to a country which will never leave the barricades of communism, where the red flag is raised by the Soviet Union", Rude Pravo said. "Our meetings with the Soviet leaders will result in absolute agreements which will demonstrate a strengthening of the partnership of the Socialist state on all fundamental questions."

The Communist leadership of Czechoslovakia has been considered the most persistently Stalinist of the entire East European bloc.

Originally, Bulganin and Khrushchev were to have gone to Prague by train, a 36-hour trip. They shifted plans and went

Two Industries Seek Location In Monroe Area

An executive committee meeting of the Monroe Area Industrial Development Corporation was scheduled for noon today to discuss the applications of two industries for location in the Monroe area.

Walter Koch, executive vice-president of MAIDCO, said the industries are being considered but no decision has been made. He stated that it may be some time before arrangements can be completed.

Koch also said, in spite of the recent partial shutdown at the Bastrop mill of the International Paper Company, the number of industries applying for location in Monroe, has not noticeably decreased. "In fact, business is better now than at this time last year," he stated, "and we expect even more industries to seek industrial sites here this fall."

The MAIDCO vice - president expressed the opinion that the Bastrop mill shutdown was part of a "leveling off" process in industry, whereby overexpansion and overproduction are trimmed down to meet consumer demand.

a motion to bring the bill to the floor.

They could try to talk his motion to death, but indications were that they would hold back their powerful filibuster weapon until the bill is actually before the Senate.

Hopes For Vote

Knowland said he hopes for a vote on his motion before the end of this week, although he expects debate on the bill itself to run on for several weeks and delay adjournment of Congress until mid-September.

Sen. Ervin (D-NC), scheduled to lead off the debate for the Dixie forces, disputed Knowland's contention that it would be reasonable to expect action on the motion within a week.

He said he and other Southerners wanted to try to make clear "what is in this bill."

"The bill is so conceived and so worded," he said, "that it conceals rather than reveals its provisions and implications. I don't think Sen. Knowland has any idea what's in it. President Eisenhower has admitted in effect that he doesn't."

At his news conference last week, Eisenhower said the bill contained "certain phrases I don't completely understand."

The President's remarks were in response to questions about a speech in which Sen. Russell (D-Ga) contended the bill would empower the federal government to impose "bayonet rule" on the South to force school integration.

Russell, leader of the Southern opponents of the bill, said the measure could cause "unreasonable confusion, bitterness and bloodshed" and had been "cunningly" drafted to vest unprecedented power in the attorney general.

1,000 Purposes

Eisenhower said such views were incomprehensible to him, that his objective in urging enactment of the legislation was "to prevent anybody illegally from interfering with any individual's right to vote."

Ervin said that under the bill "the attorney general could bring suits for 1,000 different purposes other than to establish voting rights."

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), a sponsor of the measure, said in an interview there is "no question" that the bill could be used to enforce civil rights other than voting rights.

He said there had been no concealment of this, adding that Atty. Gen. Brownell had noted in his testimony on the measure that it could be used to enforce the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision.

Central Feature

Watkins said, however, that what is often overlooked is that "the principal objective of the administration program is preventive, not punitive."

The central feature of the legislation is the authority it would give the attorney generaal to go directly into federal courts for injunctions to prevent violations, or threatened violation of voting rights or other civil rights.

with the South's fight to save segregation.

But Kasper, represented by J. Benjamin Simmons of Washington, was as much a case apart from the others as the Dixie lawyers could make him. The other 15, all Tennesseans, had petitioned in vain for separate trials.

The trial, expected to serve as a test for future segregation cases where the government is involved, was preceded Sunday night by a defense counsel request to the press to observe "objectivity."

Dobbs, a 36-year-old Florida native, noted that the trial opening coincided with the Senate schedule to bring up the House civil rights bill for the question of consideration.

Dobbs said that while the trial date here had been set some time ago by Judge Taylor, the Senate rules were abrogated so that the civil rights bill could come up on the same date.

White Mothers First Line Of Defense—Stennis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) gives this description of the South's first line of defense against proposed civil rights laws:

Southern white mothers are gravely concerned about morality problems that they feel will arise from integration of white and Negro students in public schools.

The Mississippi senator gave his views yesterday during a television debate with Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah).

The Republican, a co-sponsor of the civil rights bill, which may reach the Senate floor today, said the proposals are not aimed at promoting school desegregation.

The commission has three main goals: carrying on a consistent and constant study in to the problems created by the alcoholic; coordinating efforts of state and local agencies in educational programs for rehabilitation, and conducting orientation by films and lectures on the consequences and overall plight of persons considered alcoholics.

In the survey made by the News-Star, brief interviews were conducted with Police Chief James C. Kelly, Jr., Mayor W. L. Jack Howard, and City Judge W. M. Harper. All said they would welcome any concerted effort to reach a solution to the problem of the alcoholic. In the past, they agreed, the city and the parish has not had adequate facilities to offer medical and hospital aid to these persons.

They expressed appreciation to the local officials of Alcoholics Anonymous who have offered much help in the growing problem. Members of Alcoholics Anonymous were also included in the survey and expressed confidence in the coming program.

Current members of the alcoholism commission, in addition to Miss Rodgers, include Harmon Drew of Minden, chairman; Mrs. J. S. Goff, Mrs. Watt E. Lindsay and Judge G. Randell Whitemeyer of Shreveport; Dr. Frank Marek of Lake Charles, and Mrs. George H. Stanton of New Orleans; Dr. Milton S. Freiman of Pineville, and Dr. J. D. Martin of Baton Rouge.

ceded that Girard was on official duty when he fired an empty cartridge casing from his grenade launcher last January, fatally injuring the Japanese woman.

But, Rankin said, Girard was never authorized to use the grenade launcher on his rifle in such a fashion. Rankin contended the act was so far removed from official duty that the United States was justified in waiving its primary jurisdiction in favor of Japan.

The courtroom was packed and crowds filled outside corridors as the government led off in the stormy dispute over whether Girard should be tried by Japan.

The alleged coercion attempt took place in Leningrad in 1949 and apparently was part of the case in which several top Communists were illegally executed.

New Charges Piled Against Deposed Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — New charges piled up against three deposed Soviet leaders over the weekend, linking them with Stalin's bloody purges.

Ex-President Nikolai Shvernik, 69-year-old veteran of Communist party councils, joined in the denunciations against Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich.

Speaking before a mass rally in Leningrad, Shvernik accused the ousted trio of "tolerating violations of revolutionary law during the period of mass repressions."

Power Plot

This obviously referred to the blood purges of 1937-38, in which thousands of party, youth movement, army and economic workers were liquidated on charges of antigovernment activity framed by the secret police.

Shvernik, a member of the court that condemned Police Chief L. P. Beria to death in 1953, charged that Malenkov and Molotov—both former premiers — and former Deputy Premier Kaganovich plotted to seize power and recruited fellow conspirators in an attempt to pack the party an government with their cohorts.

The three had "lost all contact with the masses," Shvernik declared. "The ultimate aim of this group was to change the Kremlin's policies."

Charges of this caliber could pave the way for ciminal proceedings against Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich. In the past conviction on such charges has led to the death sentence.

Executives

Shvernik repeated Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev's charges that Malenkov was a chief organizer of the 1949 Leningrad purge in which several top Communists were executed.

Khrushchev told a Leningrad audience Saturday Malenkov was one of the "main organizers" in the purge. Four officials were executed in 1954 for their part in staging the purge.

Shvernik made the trip to Leningrad with Khrushchev and four other members of the Presidium who addressed mass rallies. Such meetings are being held throughout the Soviet Union to whip up support for Khrushchev's ouster of his former associates.

Watermelon Growers Have Had Bad Weather For Crop

Watermelons, a summer crop of many Ouachita Parish farmers, are just about ready for market, Earl Garland, a Calhoun farmer stated. The native melons are a bit late this year due to the wet spring, but it lookes as if we will make up for it by having watermelons all summer.

When asked just how he went about planting watermelons, he said he spent a good deal of time getting the soil ready for the seed. First he deep plowed, turning in the cover crop. This deep plowing helps to hold the moisture in the ground thus insuring plenty of deep root growth. After the ground was harrowed, he applied 400 pounds of fertilizer to the acre prior to planting.

The first hills were planted in March and continued each week until the full 20 acres were seeded.

The watermelon is a heavy feeder. It requires an abundance of plant food. To meet the food needs, commercial fertilizers should be used. Barnyard manure well-rotted is a good watermelon fertilizer but it is also a spreader of fusarium wilt since the wilt organism seems to prosper and reproduce in the barnyard manure, he said.

Spacing Important

Spacing is important in growing melons. Hills should be eight to ten feet apart on rows 12 feet wide, this makes it easier to cultivate, he said.

Cultivating should begin shortly after the plants come through the soil. A spring tooth harrow with sweep is used. It is light in weight and permits cultivation in the rows. Between the rows a plow can be used, or if the vines are trained to grow along the rows, a disc harrow is the most efficient way to keep ahead of the weeds.

Watermelons have many enemies, insects, disease, and animals. Stripped and spotted cucumber beetles and melon lice attack the plant as soon as it gets above the ground.

Wilt is the most serious of field disease for watermelons. It lives in the soil for many years. The use of wilt resistant varieties, rotation of melon fields and proper use of fertilizer are all good practices to follow in keeping down the wilt infection.

Causes Damage

Perhaps anthracnose, a disease which affects both the leaves and the fruit, causes most damage during a wet season. It first appears on leaves as small water-soaked spots which turn dark brown quickly and increase in size to form a dirty-white, dead spot. The spot may crack and fall out leaving a ragged hole. If left unchecked, it will move out on the vines and attack the young leaves and the fruit itself.

Animals and birds will find melons and do a great deal of damage to a crop. Some farmers say that a racoon can thump a melon near as well as a man and he always digs a small hole in the good melons. Crows are attracted to the melons and Garland has brought in some long poles and strung wire across them in some section of the fields to keep the birds out. He said that it works as long as you don't put them up to soon. When his melons are in the four to six inch stage he said he put wire up.

Thinning and culling is also very important to a good crop. All melons except three or four well shaped fruits should be removed from each hill when they are about three inches in diameter. All misshapen, end-shriveled or damaged melons should be cut off as soon as they are found.

Dusting the plants should be done as often as needed. He said he had dusted his older plants eight times this season with a vegetable dust.

Knowing when a watermelon is ripe is most important. Melons that are not ripe do not have the eating qulity desired and if they are overripe, they do not last long in shipment.

Experience counts for more than anything else in helping one to determine the proper time of harvesting the melons. The thumping sound and color change are also helps in determining the ripeness of melons.

Melons should be handled with care to prevent injury to them. They should be placed on sides, not the ends.

Most watermelons planted in the area are watermelons developed at the Calhoun Experiment station under the direction of J. C. Taylor.

Taylor has developed a "Calhoun Sweet" that is just about the best in all respects. It has flavor, color, and will stand up under shipping.

Tax Refund On Gas Due Farmers

Beginning July 1 Louisiana farmers may apply for a refund of the federal taxes paid on gasoline used in farming operations during the 12 month period ending June 30, according to W. D. Curtis, economist, with the LSU agricultural extension service, in a communication to J. J. Joyce, Jr., county agent. This federal tax amounts to 2 cents per gallon for gas purchased prior to July 1, 1956, and 3 cents per gallon for gas purchased after July 1, 1956.

"To be eligible for a tax retund on your purchases of gasoline, you must be the owner, tenant, or operator of the farm," he reminds. "No tax refunds are allowed on gasoline used off the farm, or in processing, packaging, freezing, or canning operations. However, you may claim tax refund on gasoline used on your farm by a neighbor or custom operator who performs farming operations for you.

"Claims may be filed after June 30, but not later than October 1. You will find it an easy job to file your application for refund on the simple Form 2240. All you need to show on this form is your name, address, gallons of gasoline purchased and used for farming purposes, and the amount of refund you are requesting. Then sign the form and mail it to the District Director of Internal Revenue Service, New Orleans. Nothing else is needed."

Follow All Rules For Best Results From Irrigation

Efficient irrigation must depend upon a number of factors and good farming practices. If a farmer plans to irrigate, he is advised to make sure that a number of conditions are met.

Of prime importance is an adequate supply of water and the right to make use of it for irrigation purposes. The farmers planning to irrigate should use recommended varieties of crops on his more productive soils and follow the recommended fertilizaton and planning practices.

It is also important that insects and diseases be controlled to get higher returns. In order to get the best use of the water and labor involved in irrigation the farmer should have a system, planned in advance, and engineered to fit his particular needs and conditions.

Spring Pig Crop Report Shows Fewer Than In '56

The state's 1957 spring pig crop (December 1, 1956 to June 1, 1957) totaled 336,000 head, the Louisiana Crop Reporting Service announced.

This is 8 per cent smaller than last spring's big crop of 366,000 head and 23 per cent smaller than the 1946-55 average of 435,000 head. Since the number of pigs saved per litter at 6.1 pigs is the same as last spring, the decline in the pig crop from 1956 is due to fewer sows farrowing. The number of sows farrowing this spring at 55,000 head is 5,000 head less than last year and 24,000 head less than average.

Percentage distribution of the 1957 spring farrowings is as follows: December 13.6 per cent, January 22.5 per cent, February 23.7 per cent, March 19.1 per cent April 14.4 per cent, May 6.7 per cent. Reports on breeding intentions indicate that 42,000 sows will farrow this fall. If these intentions materialize and the number of pigs saved per litter equals the 1952-56 average, the 1957 fal lpig crop would be 256,000 head. This would be 16 per cent less than last fall and 30 per cent less than the 10-year average.

The 1957 spring pig crop totaled 53,170,000 head, practically the same as the 1956 spring crop of 53,186,000 head. The number of sows farrowed this spring at 7,466,000 head was 3 per cent less than the 7,665,000 sows farrowed in the spring of 1956. The number of pigs saved per litter averaged 7.12, a new high for spring farrowing and compares with 6.94 pigs per liter in 1956.

Reports on breeding intentions indicate a total of 5,308,000 sows to farrow this fall. This would be an increase of 2 per cent over 1956 fall farrowings. If the intended farrowings are realized and the number of pigs saved per litter equals the average, plus an allowance for upward trend, the 1957 fall pig crop would be 37 million head. The combined spring and fall pig crops for 1957 would then be about 90 million head. This would be 1 per cent above both 1956 and the 1946-55 average.

Spring Pig Crop

The number of pigs saved in the spring season of 1957 (December 1956 through May 1957) is estimated at 53,170,000 head. This is only slightly below the 1956 spring crop of 53,186,000 head, but is 2 per cent below the 1946-55 average.

The number of sows farrowed in the spring of 1957 is estimated at 7,466,000 head, 3 per cent less than last year and 10 per cent less than the 10-year average. The 1957 spring farrowings were 1 per cent less than indicated by farmers' reports on intentions last December.

The 7.12 pigs saved per litter this spring is new record high and compares with 6.94 in 1956 which fas the previous high for the spring crop.

Reports on breeding intentions indicate that 5,308,000 sows will farrow during the fall season (June through November) of 1957. If these intentions are realized, the number of sows farrowing this fall would be 2 per cent more than during the fall of 1956 and also 2 per cent more than the 10-year average.

If fall farrowing intentions materiali e and the number of pigs saved per litter equals the average, with an allowance for upward trend, the 1957 fall pig crop will be about 37 million head. This would be 1 per cent above 1956 and 7 per cent more than the 10-year average. The combiined pig crops for 1957 would be about 90 million head, 1 per cent above both last year and average.

The number of hogs over 6 months old (including sows) on farms June 1 this year was 15,159,000 head compared with 15,588,000 on June last year, a decrease of 3 per cent. The 1957 number was 25 per cent below the 10 - year average. The 1956 fall pig crop, which makes up most of the June 1 inventory of hogs over 6 months old was 4 per cent smaler than in 1955.

Conservation Highlights

Tom Bradley, who farms on Bear Lake, has been growing alfalfa for several years. He is planning to change this alfalfa to a different portion of his farm and he requested that a sample be taken for a soil analysis. This sample was analyzed by the soil laboratory in Baton Rouge and Bradley is now making arrangements for fertilizers called for in the recommendations. By following the recommendations of the sample, Bradley feels that he can double the production of alfalfa.

Bill Clark, woodland conservationist, assisting the East Carroll-Madison soil conservation district is working with Jesse Anderson on developing a woodland management program on his woodland. This plan will consist mostly of an improvement cut. Mature trees will be taken out to permit desirable reproduction. Trees will be thinned and spaced where necessary for the remaining trees to make maximum growth.

Each year, the soil conservation districts in Louisiana enter a contest sponsored by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. As a part of this contest, each district is asked to submit the name of an outstanding conservation farmer in the district. Jim Gilfoil was selected as the outstanding farmer for 1957 in the East Carroll-Madison soil conservation district. This selection was based on all phases of a coordinated soil and water conservation progrma.

Preliminary surveys for farm drainage have been or are in the process of being completed by the Soil Conservation service on the farms of the following: Fred Frazer, Ashly Plantation, Jim Gilfoil, Clyde Donaldson, Scott Plantation and Yerger Brothers Section 47.

Deadline For Applications Is July 15

The Louisiana State University College of Agriculture calls the attention of the young people of the state to the existence of 16 valuable scholarships available to qualified high school graduates who intend to enroll in the college and study agriculture or home economics.

One of the 16 is the $300 Dean Lee Scholarship, established by donations in honor of the late J. G. Lee, Jr., for many years Dean of the College. The other 15 are offered by companies and industries interested in promoting the welfare of agriculture and homemaking and encouraging young men and women to pursue studies in these fields. Applications must be in the office of the Dean of the College of Agriculture at L.S.U. by July 15.

We are sure that none of the scholarships will go begging, and we hope that all those boys and girls who hope to study agriculture or home economics and can meet the scholastic and other qualifications will make their applications. As the College points out, there are other scholarships that offer assistance to those who maintain a good record during their freshman year. And there are many employment and self-help opportunities on the campus.

As agriculture comes to depend more and more on the use of complicated machinery, expensive and sometimes dangerous chemicals, and the most scientific methods of crop and livestock production, the need for well-trained farmers and other agricultural workers increases. Those who farm by tradition alone, rule of thumb or guess-work are going to have an increasingly difficult time.

Agricultural Prices Are Up For Last June

The Index of Prices Received by Louisiana farmers increased 0.8 per cent (2 point during the month ended June 15, the Louisiana Crop Reporting Service announced today.

The mid-June index at 250 per cent of its 1909-14 base is 4.6 per cent (11 points) higher than a year earlier. Higher prices for rice, hogs, wholesale milk, broilers and eggs are primarily responsible for the increase from a month earlier. Partially offsetting are lower prices for corn, oats, hay, beef cattle and calves.

The cotton and cottonseed index at 267 is unchanged from May but is 2 points above last June. Rice at $5.20 per hundredweight is 10 cents above last month and 85 cents above a year ago. At $1.31 per bushel, corn is 3 cents below May but 13 cents above a year earlier.

Oat prices followed the usual May-June decline as new-crop oats are starting to reach the market. Oats on June 15 averaged 65 cents per bushel — 15 cents less than a month earlier and 1 cent less than last June. Soybeans at $2.25 per bushel are the same as the previous month, but 55 cents below June a year ago. All hay at $21.30 per ton is down $1.00 from May but is $1.10 higher than last June. Irish potatoes at $2.00 per hundredweight are the same as in mid-May but $1.90 below a year earlier.

Meat Animals

Hog prices advanced 50 cents during the month, which resulted in a slight increase in the meat animal index. Lower prices for beef cattle and calves are nearly offsetting. This index at 275 is only 1 point higher than May but is 29 points higher than last June.

Hogs averaged $16.30 per hundredweight — up 50 cents from last month and $2.10 from a year ago. Beef cattle at $11.40 are down 10 cents from the preceding month but are up $1.10 from June a year ago. Calves brought an average of $17.10 — 40 cents below a month earlier, but $1.60 above a year ago. Lambs at $17 are off $1.00 from May and the same as last June. Sheep which averaged $7.00 are 20 cents above a month ago and 50 cents above a year ago.

Wholesale milk at $5.10 per hundredweight is 5 cents higher than in May but 40 cents lower than in June last year. Milk cows at $125.00 per head are down $5.00 from last month and the same as last June. Egg prices advanced 1.6 cents to 35.8 cents per dozen during the month but remained 2.2 cents below last June. Broilers at 21.0 cents per pound are up 1 cent from a month earlier but are the same as a year ago. Farm chickens at 22.0 cents per pound are the same as last month but 1 cent below last June.

Prices paid for all of the more important feeds declined during the month, with growing mashes generally showing the sharpest drop. Turkey growing mash is off 30 cents while broiler mash and shorts are 20 cents lower. Mixed dairy feed and laying mash are both down 15 cents while scratch grain and cottonseed meal are down a dime. Bran is off a nickel from May.

National Report

During the month ended June 15 the Index of Prices received by farmers increase 1 point (4 tenths of one per cent). Higher prices for meat animals, fruit, and cotton were primarily responsible for the increase. Partially offsetting were lower prices for commercial vegetables, grain, and hay. The June index at 244 per cent of its 1910-14 average was one point below June 1956.

Higher prices for consumer goods were offset by lower prices of farm production goods to leave the June 15 index of Prices Paid for Commodities, Interest, Taxes and Farm Wage Rates (the Parity Index) at 296, the same as a month earlier. As in May, the June index was 3 per cent higher than a year earlier. The advance in farm product prices during the month was not enough to raise the Parity Ratio. At 82, it was 5 per cent lower than in June of last year, and the lowest June ratio since 1940.

Early Leaf Worm Active Here Now

The insect control picture is becoming more complex because insecticides are changing each year they are becoming more hazardous to use, insects are becoming more resistant to them and because the pattern of agriculture is changing, according to Dr. L. D. Newson, entomologist and head of the L. S. U. Entomology Department and Kirby L. Cockerham, entomologist, L. S. U. Agricultural Extension Service, in a communication to J. J. Joyce, Jr., county agent.

EDITORIALS

Curtain Pulled On Russian Ruffians

These columns have stressed on previous occasions the necessity of viewing the theatrical aspects of "major shakeups" in the Soviet government. Analysts are terming the recent ouster of Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich and Shepilov as everything from a political victory for the Khrushchev "anti-Stalinists" to a "good omen for world peace." There may be some truth in these observations. In addition, however, the change of faces promises all indications of new settings and lights for accomplishing the same end—Soviet advances in the "cold war."

The dual personality of Khrushchev, head of the Communist party and thereby head of Russia, though Bulganin holds that title officially, emerges as one which may well dominate the world diplomatic stage. He has successfully gotten himself billed as the Communist's top supporter of a policy of "peaceful coexistence" with the western nations. Talking this part from one side of his mouth, Khrushchev has managed to convince some western governments that he is of a gentler breed than the old Bolsheviks of the Stalinist school.

Yet it must not be forgotten that this same Nikita Khrushchev turned loose a huge Russian fighting force to stamp out a relatively small revolution in Hungary last fall. He maintained a completely self righteous attitude as the United Nations voted to condemn Russia's action in this matter.

In other words, Khrushchev is by no means opposed to bloodshed. He simply does not wish to be billed as a villain on the program of world affairs.

It was the English playwright Shakespeare who noted: "All the world's a stage and the men and women merely players." But the Russian government since the advent of Communism has played theatrical diplomacy on a top level basis. This is true even in the case of the former Soviet police chief, Beria, who was taken out of the "act" and executed.

So it is when four leading officials and two lesser figures are dropped from the Central Committee of the world's largest Communist party. Apparently these figures mean little or nothing to the Russian people. If Molotov—recognized as a most skillful diplomat—had made much of an impression on the Russian citizens, there would be objections to his sudden removal. The same holds true for Malenkov, a former premier, and the old party man, Kaganovich.

But the Russian masses will cheer or hiss—or the party press will say they did—according to Kremlin directions.

The dismissal or removal from the 11-man Praesidium of six members follows the general pattern of Khrushchev's playing down of what he himself calls "the Stalinist cult of the individual."

But it may be anticipated that Khrushchev—no weakling as an individual politician himself—will keep at least two or three of the old strong men around just in case his peaceful coexistence policies need stiffening.

On Staying Alive

It is a remarkable thing, but when a prolonged heat wave strikes hospitals are no longer filled with victims of heat prostration, as was for years the case. Health authorities say the reason people get along with the heat better is that they have become more sensible.

When temperature readings climb, they wear lighter clothing. They eat more easily digestible foods. Many of them live in homes designed for maximum circulation of air and the capture of every vagrant breeze.

Another reason cited by health authorities is that people have become conscious of the necessity of taking it easy. They stroll instead of stride; sit under a tree or awning instead of going out on the golf course; find the weather a wonderful excuse for putting off until tomorrow all of the household chores which require unusual exertion. They have learned to live languorously.

All of these factors unquestionably contribute to the way people bear up better. So do some other factors, such as air conditioning being a boon within the reach of many more people than formerly.

But overlooked in some of the explanations is the tremendous advance in the use of labor-saving machinery. The farmer who once relied mainly on brawn now has machines doing the heavy work. In factories and in homes it is the same story. And as every sidewalk superintendent knows, hand labor of the more arduous sort has virtually disappeared in the business of constructing a building or laying a highway.

When all the draws, brooks, streams and rivers are dammed, where will the oceans get their water?

During a British parliamentary debate the principals quoted Shakespeare. That at least assured a high level discussion.

Marriage is a dictatorship, asserts one misanthropist. At least the victim has a choice as to which thumb he will live under.

When Congress quits, it will leave many proposed laws unenacted. That will offend only those who think there ought to be another law.

'Peaceful Liberation' Is Ultimate Objective Of U.S. Toward Reds

By Fulton Lewis

WASHINGTON — "Peaceful liberation" is now the ultimate objective which, the United States believes, can and will be attained by the peoples of Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

This is the goal, whether achieved by "evolutionary" or "revolutionary" means, that President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles both feel must be constantly given moral support through American foreign policy.

Whenever there is a shake-up in the Kremlin, as has just happened, the feeling in official quarters here is that the leavening process has been given added momentum.

"American policy," says the secretary of state, "is conducted on the assumption, as a working hypothesis, that free governments in the long run are going to prevail and despotic governments in the long run are going to go under."

"Do you apply the same working hypothesis to the Soviet Union?" was asked of Mr. Dulles at his press conference.

"Yes," was the reply. "We believe that it is almost certain that there will be an evolutionary change, probably evolutionary — conceivably it could be revolutionary, but it does not seem likely."

Just last week President Eisenhower himself stressed the same point in an address to the governors' conference when he said:

"In spite of repression and ceaseless indoctrination, the determination of men and women to resist tyrannical control will not die; they will never accept supinely the lot of the enslaved . . .

"I am profoundly convinced that one day — inevitably — those nations and those peoples will again be free. Evolutionary change, generated by pressures from within and without, hopes and yearnings of the oppressed, kept alive by the friendships of the free peoples of the earth, will eventually destroy or disintegrate despotic power, and those down-trodden populations will again walk upright upon the earth."

How can the United States help, since it has again and again said it would not use military force to help liberate the enslaved nations? The answer is by moral force, which means withholding and of the kind that would enhance the prestige or power of the despotic government. Mr. Dulles explained it this way:

"I don't put any dates on these things. I don't say what is going to happen in one year, five years, ten years, but I am confident that that is a basic truth. Certainly it's an assumpion that I think must be made by anybody who believes in the American tradition."

Specifically, the American policy of withholding recognition of Red China's regime and refusing to agree to its admission into the United Nations is an example of moral force. Indeed, Secretary Dulles expresses regret that the United States extended recognition to the Soviet government in 1933. He said the other day "that recognition would not have been accorded to the Soviet Uinion even in 1933 had there been a clear warning that the Soviet promises given in that connection were totally unreliable" or that "aggressive war would soon become an instrumentality of Soviet policy."

This was the first formal expression of regret by the American government that it had recognized the Soviet Union in 1933, though in 1954 Henry cabot Lodge, American ambassador to the U.N., said something along the same line in a CBS television interview, as follows:

"I think that in 1945, at San Francisco, the United Sttaes assumed that Russia was a peace-loving nation, and the whole United Nations was based on the assumption that the alliance between the United States and the Soviet Union would continue, which, of course, was a very false —tragically false — assumption. Certainly, if we had thought at that time that the Soviet Union believed in war as an instrument of national policy, we would not have joined the United Nations with her."

This is the basic reason why the United States, in its desire to befriend the Chinese people as a whole, feels it should not extend diplomatic recognition to the present regime in Peiping or support any effort to admit the Communist government into the United Nations.

This is true liberalism, yet the amazing thing is that many persons here and abroad who profess to be "liberal" have lined up on the side of the despotic and tyrannical Communists in Peiping. Their crusade to get Red China recognized has failed thus far. Moral force—American idealism—is still the inspiration for American foreign policy in dealing with the Communists.

Sorry About Maine's Break With Non-Conformity In Election Dates

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—I feel a nostalgia, as if at the razing of some irreplaceable landmark, over Maine's pending break with nonconformity in its election date habits.

On September 9, the voters pass on a proposed amendment to the state Sonstitution which will set future state elections on the same day they are held in all other states: the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November—the same date as our national elections.

Since 1820, when Maine broke away from Massachusetts to become a state in her own right, congressional and state balloting had been on the second Monday in September, thus providing a sort of sneak preview of political trends, which spawned the lilting slogan, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation."

For a century or more it was true, though of late the barometer has become a bit leaky. In 1936 as Maine went, so went Vermont. It continued to go Republican, presidentially, in 1940, 1944, and 1948, when the nation was going Democratic.

But aging prophets are due some forgiveness, particularly if they are picturesque. Must sentiment forever be subjugated to efficiency?

There is little doubt of the coming verdict.

Among Democrats there is a measure of apathy, for practical reasons. Their popular Governor Edmund S. Muskie is better able to help the state Democratic slate as a whole if the elections are kept apart from the national picture.

Conversely, if the Republican presidential candidate has a tremendous personal following as Mr. Eisenhower had in 1952 and 1956, it would be beneficial to the state GOP ticket if the elections were held simultaneously.

For the record, however, both parties have formally committed themselves to the change, and the Republicans, who would reap the advantage, far outnumber the Democrats anyway.

The original reason for the September date was that 137 years ago, transportation was a major problem and by November, most of Maine's wagon trails were snowcovered to impassability. Today, however, tire-chained autos can slog their way through most snow, and there are two positive considerations which recommend the consolidated balloting:

1. Down-easters are frugal. It costs about $100,000 to hold the additional election.

2. So many citizens are vacationing in August, or busy with the vacation trade of visitors, that it is difficult to arouse interest in campaigns for a September vote. Also, the lack of state tickets in the November balloting for President, cuts down interest there.

At this early stage, it seems unlikely that the date change will have any effect on the elections next year. The important factor in the Maine political complexion is the industrialization of its major cities and the consequent growth of labor union influence, which has twice elected Muskie.

The top jobs in contest for 1958 are governor and senator, and it is not clear, at this time, who any of the candidates will be. Incumbent Senator Fred Payne announced last November, after a severe heart attack, that he would not run again, but his recovery has been so excellent that he now says he is reconsidering.

Payne is a soft-spoken, middle-of-the-road individual who is a former governor himself, and could easily beat off any attempt to unseat him, even by Muskie.

Aside from Payne, however, no other Republicans are coming to the fore, which means that Muskie is virtually undefeatable to continue in the governorship.

A second constitutional amendment on the September ballot will change the governor's term from two to four years, but will limit any person's tenure to two terms. That, however, would not block Muskie, inasmuch as his service, as of election time, would total only four years.

Still seems a shame. I think I know how Oliver Wendell Holmes felt when he wrote, bitterly:

"Ay, tear her tattered ensigns down; long have they waved on high."

Do Most Women Reduce All Issues To Personal Terms?

By Inez Robb

The critics of my sex constantly charge that women interpret and reduce all issues, great and small, to personal terms. And I must plead guilty as charged when I read of the turmoil in North Africa.

I fell in love with that wide part of the world, from Casablanca to Tunisia, in 1943 when I operated there as a war correspondent (who never captured any spies, or villages and was never called in to advise the generals.) Now I long for peace to return to this tumultous land so that I may go back as a tourist for a long browse through Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and beyond.

Much of the landscape is reminiscent of Southern California, New Mexico and Arizona. It is often beautiful and wildly romantic. Across the slopes of its mountains and sharp foothills the shadows of evening fall in intense shades of violet and green unique to this region.

When I read of trouble in Tebessa on the edge of Tunisia, I say a quick prayer that nothing has happened to mar the small and perfect temple to Minerva built there by the Roman legions so many centuries ago. I glimpsed it once under harried circumstances, silhouetted in the light of a full moon, as Rommel drove toward the Kasserine Pass and his bombers were expected momentarily to try to destroy the Allied rail center at Tebessa.

That was not a night for sightseeing. But the temple has haunted me ever since, and I long to return to inspect at my leisure this isolated gem that once marked the tide of the Roman Empire at the full. There must be many GIs who remember the Roman baths in this region that were still in working condition after the passage of more than 2,000 years.

There can be few cities more dramatic than Constantine, divided down its center by the great gorge of the Rhumel River, a lesser Grand Canyon and urbanized to boot.

It grieves me when I read of death and violence in Algiers and a boiling hatred that may not pass in this generation. Allied force headquarters were there in the winter of '43, and it seemed a relatively quiet backwash of war except for occasional visits from German bombers.

Like San Francisco, Algiers is an enchanting city rising from a beautiful harbor in a series of sharp hills covered with white buildings, sparkling in the Mediterranean sun. I want to see it again when the mimosa trees are in bloom, decking the city with great willowy plumes of pure gold.

But of all the cities of North Africa, Casablanca included, none can hold a candle to Marrakech, that peerless Arab metropolis at the foot of the snow - capped Atlas Mountains "where the desert meets the snow."

It is a city of rosy - red buildings (the color of the local clay) whose streets are lined with orange trees and whose gardens are alive with roses and gargantuan geraniums. In its huge town square, as many as 100,000 Arabs gather between 4 and 10 p. m. daily to do their shopping, swap gossip and squat in quiet circles to listen to the storytellers whose tales were old before the coming of Christ.

This part of the world needs peace far more than it needs tourists, but speed the day when both again will return to it.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Is it not true that communism and Christianity have many things in common? Why then should we be so opposed to communism? S. D.

ANSWER: No doubt you have reference to the community of land and of possessions. It is true that in the Bible such community of goods was practiced, but there are many things that make communism the very opposite of Christianity. Such surrender of personal possessions in the Bible was strictly voluntary and never legislated. It was shared with others who were themselves willing to share for mutual benefit. Communism is today nothing more than dialectical materialism of the Marxist variety. Christianity is a spiritual faith that transcends the world of matter. Matter is not an evil, as medieval mystics and Hindus have taught, but neither is it eternal. Jesus taught that "God is spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth." Communism teaches that the individual exists for the state. The Bible teaches that the individual is created in the image of God and possesses great dignity and responsibility thereby. The hope of the Christian is not to be lost in the process of the state but to receive his highest destiny in his final union with Jesus Christ.

Newspaper Photographers Special 'Breed Of Men'

By Jim Bishop

When I must spend time waiting for a story to break, I like to sit it out with newspaper photographers. These are a special breed of men. They have patience and humor and a native shrewdness which cannot be taught in college. They stake their lives on a Graphic 4.5 or a Graflex or a Rollicord 3.5 and sometimes, in the privacy of the dark room, they mutter words which will never see print.

They differ from the big - time reporters because the reporter today has become a specialist. If his beat is crime, he may not shine at a public utilities hearing. Should be he a star at covering the story of a little girl who lost her doll, he may be a pretty poor bet for the story of an opening night. The photographer covers them all.

Sometimes, he must invent. In the summer, his boss may growl: "Go out and get me a hot weather feature." This means that the cameraman has to figure out his own picture and go get it. He may find a horse being doused with a hose, or a traffic cop mopping his brow and looking at a thermometer. Years ago, Jesse Strait went out in Brooklyn and cadged a cutie - pie age 3 and followed her down a shopping district. She had a pink parasol.

At each street, she took off one of her garments and dropped it. Strait was directly behind her, shooting pictures as she went. When she removed her panties and shoes, she walked only with the parasol. At last, she came to a plumber's shop and saw a bathtub on display. She got in it, parasol and all, and that was Jesse's final shot.

He invented the whole thing, of course.

Sometimes — even as you and I — they make mistakes. Twenty-five years ago, Tommy Flanagan was sent to Loew's Theatre to shoot a picture of six hundred imported canaries. They were in the lobby, chirping happily. In those days, photographers used powder and a flash pan. Tommy set up his camera, poured a lot of powder, and poof! — six hundred dead canaries.

The coroner said they had simultaneous heart attacks, fairly unusual for imported canaries. Someone in the Sunday Mirro, in New York, did as much for trained fleas. The man who owned them brought them to the newspaper and ordered them to pull a very tiny cannon across the table. The photographer blinked his flash bulb at them and the trained fleas were fried to a crisp, still pulling.

And yet, that isn't as bad a mistake as the photographer on the Coast who was called in by his boss to make a picture. The boss had been listening to a happy man explain that he had trained one flea for many years. He took the flea out of a box and put him on a desk and had him hold a miniature American flag, march, do a dance, tumble, and do a drunk act.

The flea owner said: "Have I got a million bucks in this flea or have I got a million bucks?" The editor said the man sure had a million dollars all right and he called the photographer in to make a picture. The photographer came in bright and smiling, and, before anyone said a word, he said: "Look! A Flea!" and smacked it with his hand.

There is a good story in every photographer I ever knew. My good friend is Emil F. Herman of Kink Features and, like his brethern, he has covered everything from the gutter death of a gangster to King George and Queen Elizabeth eating hot dogs at Hyde Park. Dick Sarno and I worked stories together when he was a star cameraman and I was a cub reporter. Joe Costa and Teddy Dalton and Eric Hedlund and Marty McEvilly and Barney Coons and George Schmidt and Freddie Klein and Eddy Jackson are a few of those with whom I have sat while waiting for a statesman to die, or for the first picture of the Lindbergh baby, or for a close play at second base.

Mr. Isadore Kaplan was a member of the clan. He had a Galician accent and a bossy attitude toward his subjects. Before my time, he was ordered to meet a ship coming in with Queen Marie of Rumania. The Queen spoke English and, of course, was as regal as the vice president of a branch bank.

The photographers showed up on the liner in their Sunday best. A few wore spats. Only Kaplan had an open collar shirt, a brown tweed jacket and a pair of blue pants which looked like they had been laundered in beef stew.

Her Majesty came up on the sun deck and, amid much deference, was photographed smiling at the New York skyline. When it was over, Kaplan walked up to her, and said: "Okay, Queenie kid. Now hop on the rail and lift the dress for a leetle cheesecake."

As I said, a breed apart . . .

About Those Who Blasted McCarthy And McCarran

By Westbrook Pegler

Of all the rogues who blackened Joe McCarthy and Pat McCarran for their patriotic opposition to the Communist cabal and its covert political allies in our country, Hank Greenspun, originally from Brooklyn, now of Las Vegas, Nev., is no less loathsome than the most. A majority of the mob in Vegas are police characters from New York, Chicago and Miamis as Barney Ruditzky, a retired New York cop, confided to the California police during the investigation of the gang murder of Buggsy Segal. Greenspun was press agent for the Segal mob's brave new enterprise. The Flamingo, soon after the war. Ruditzky had become a collector of bad debts for Segal. Greenspun and Co., and other syndicates of the same type. By mischance, a verified copy of his confidential discourse to the cops fell into the wrong hands. His embarrassment was picturesque.

Greenspun was the one who first circulated disgusting and absolutely false insinuations that McCarthy was abnormal. This was expectable of a guttersnipe, but other publications of pretensions to good repute and ethics seized upon it and they had no excuse but their own professional depravity.

About the time when Segal was shot with a rifle in the home of Virginia Hill, a spectacular "moll" of the day, Greenspun made a deal with the international typographical union to acquire a paper called the Las Vegas Sun which the union had set up to fight the old, established Review - Journal. The Sun and other such reckless ventures have cost the union members many millions and a revolution is constantly simmering and erupting in the rank and file.

In the war, Greenspun was captain of a Mobile junkyard which followed the front to salvage wrecked automobile. His enemies have tried to show that he was absent throughout the Bulge, but that AWOL appears to have lasted less than 48 hours.

However, there is not the slightest doubt that on July 17, 1950, he pleaded "guilty" to gun-running into Mexico in the U. S. court in Los Angeles. He had exported American machine-guns for further shipment abroad and he got $1,300,000, paid through a Swiss bank.

Greenspun claimed that he spent all this money buying weapons from the Mexican government. But he did not offer a shred of evidence. The court refused to let him plead "nolo contendere" whereby he might have been able to pretend that his guilty was only theoretical.

Judge Peirson Hall said Greenspun would have to plead guilty or not guilty. If he pleaded not guilty the government would hang it on him with abundant proof. Greenspun then pleaded guilty. He and two others each were fined $10,000. The judge did not impose prison terms because the high conspirators were out of the country. Herschel Champlin, the assistant U. S. attorney, and an agent of the FBI said each of three lawyers engaged for the mob got $60,000 plus charges for consultations at lunch and by phone. An "agency" in New York paid all this. There were even charges for time spent by counsel in taxis en route to consultations, so altruism played no part in the episode. An extra lawyer who came out from New York to advise Greenspun had risen to the rank of colonel in the legal labyrinth of the Pentagon. He had been an assistant on Tom Dewey's staff when Dewey was district attorney. As to his fee I have no information.

"I have asked the U. S. attorney to submit to me reports from the FBI," Judge Hall said. "From that it indicates that Greenspun received $1,300,000 in Mexico City in connection with that venture."

As to whether the treasury ever made Greenspun show what he did with the $1,300,000 the record is silent.

Champlin told Judge Hall that Greenspun was "caught cheating in his bar examination," in New York, "and was disqualified, but was allowed to take the examination again a year later and passed it."

Greenspun "explained" this, but when all was said and done, admitted that "they allowed us to take the bar exam over again." He passed.

To dispel any idea that Greenspun's gun-running was a noble exploit, Judge Hall berated him for sending overseas weapons for money. He thus jeopardized the peace of the United States.

For more than a year a motion has been on file in the Supreme Court of New York to disbar Greenspun as a confessed felon, but nothing happens.

This is the quality of a star witness, exploited, saluted and embraced by the enemies of McCarthy and McCarran.

Yanks, Cardinals Lead Respective Pennant Races

Major Teams Suspend For All-Stars

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

The first half of the 1957 major league season now is history, and it will take one of the greatest second-half drives in history to catch either the Yankees or Cardinals at the breakneck slip they are traveling now.

Both the Yanks and Cards are 2½ games ahead in their respective pennant races today as all the teams pause for the annual All-Star break.

The Yankees are whizzing along at a phenomenal .846 pace with 22 victories in their last 26 games. And the Cardinals are zipping along at a .722 figure with 26 out of their last 36, a pace that finally has begun to unravel what was one of the tightest National League races ever.

The world champion Yankees made it four in a row Sunday when they came from behind to defeat Washington, 7-5, while St. Louis swept a double-header from Cincinnati, winning the opener, 3-2 in 10 innings and the nightcap, 9-6.

In other American League games, the White Sox swept a pair from the Indians, taking the 13-inning opener, 9-8, and the second game, 7-2. Detroit topped Kansas City, 5-2, and Baltimore beat Boston, 8-4.

Dodgers Dumped Twice

Philadelphia took both ends of a double-header from Brooklyn, 2-1 and 5-3, to move back into the first division in the National League; the Pirates beat the Giants twice, 10-6 and 8-1, and Milwaukee defeated Chicago, 4-2.

Yogi Berra's double with the bases full highlighted a four-run rally by the Yanks in the eighth inning after they had trailed the Senators, 2-1. Gil McDougald clinched the contest with a two-run homer in the ninth. Art Ditmar gained the victory in relief of Whitey Ford.

Jim Rivera tripled to open the 13th inning for the White Sox, then came home with the winning run in the opener on Luis Aparicio's single. Jack Harshman checked the Indians on five hits in the nightcap as the White Sox got to Early Wynn for three runs in the first inning on four hits and a walk.

Al Kaline and Charley Maxwell each connected for homers, driving in all of Detroit's five runs between them in the victory over Kansas City. Paul Foytack posted his ninth victory with a seven hitter.

Lanky Connie Johnson of the Orioles stopped the Red Sox on seven hits and Bob Nieman drove in four of Baltimore's runs as Tom Brewer suffered his eighth setback.

Cunningham Big Gun

Joe Cunningham drove in all three Cardinal runs in the opener, hitting a two-run homer in the first inning and then singling home the winning run in the 10th. Sam Jones was the winner in relief of bonus rookie Von McDaniel, who gave up both Cincinnati runs in the seven innings he worked. Rookie Bobby Gene Smith drove in four runs in the nightcap and Wally Moon three as Wilmer Mizell won in relief.

Ed Bouchee's ninth-inning homer off Sal Maglie gave the Phils their opening game victory over Brooklyn and ex-Dodger Chico Fernandez decided the nightcap with a three-run double that broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth.

Frank Thomas and Dick Groat combined talents to lead the Pirates to their sweep over the Giants. Thomas hit three homers in the twin bill to drive in five runs while Groat drove in six runs with a homer in each game and a bases-loaded triple in the finale.

Lew Burdette of the Braves won his first game since May 18 when he held the Cubs to six hits. The Braves got to Cub starter Dave Hillman for three runs in the first inning on a walk, Hank Aaron's single and triples by Wes Covington and Frank Torre.

LOOKS ARE DECEIVING—Pittsburgh's Dee Fondy, 3, looks like a dead pigeon as he tries to slide back into second base after being caught off the bag by a Giants pick off try in the seventh inning of a twin bill opener at the Polo Grounds in New York yesterday. But in this case he made it back safely. Giants' second basemen Daryl Spencer has the ball, but it's too far to the side for him to make the tag in time. Ray Crone was on the mound for the Giants. The Pirates won both games. (AP Wirephoto.)

Majors All-Star Batteries Are Announced Today

By STAN MOCKLER
United Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Jim Bunning of Detroit or Billy Loes of Baltimore will start for the American League in Tuesday's All-Star Game, while National League skipper Walt Alston leaned toward one of two left handers — Curt Simmons of the Phillies or Johnny Antonelli of the Giants.

American League Manager Casey Stengel had considered starting Early Wynn of Cleveland but those plans went out the window when Wynn pitched—and lost—the nightcap of a double-header with the White Sox Sunday.

Alston wants a southpaw to start for him because the American League's starting lineup is packed with such left-handed power hitters as Yogi Berra, Ted Williams and Vic Wertz. Alston also has Milwaukee southpaw Warren Spahn available to start but he indicated he would go with either Simmons or Antonelli.

Nationals Favored

The weatherman predicted a warm day for the game and the oddsmen predicted a National League victory.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and Williams are the grandpappy types in the lineups. This will be Stan's 14th appearance in the classic and the 13th for Ted.

Musial is having one of his greatest years and the Boston belter is in the thick of the batting and home run race.

Other All-Star old-timers are Yogi Berra in his eighth, George Kell, the sixth, and Nellie Fox, the fifth. The only freshman on either starting lineup is Cincinnati third baseman Don Hoak.

Using "Home" Park

Several factors contribute to the slim 6-to-5 edge the Nationals have in the betting odds. They will be seeking their seventh victory in the last eight games of the inter-league rivalry and they will be playing in a National League park. Also, their combined batting average is nine points above the Americans even .300.

Going for the Americans, however, is an overall advantage of 13-10 in the big game, which dates back to 1933 and skips only the war year of 1945.

This will be the third All Star Game for St. Louis and it will be a rubber game as far as the city is concerned. The now-defunct Browns were hosts for an American League, 5-2, victory in 1948 and the Cards entertained for a 4-0 National Victory in 1940.

TROUT CATCHES A GIRL

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (AP) — When a fish catches a girl that's news. A four-pound rainbow trout hooked in the McIntyre River pulled 11-year-old Wendy Zapha into the water. Her companion, Betty Gregory, fished both of them out.

Ferriday Little League Play Enters Final Week

FERRIDAY (Special) — The Ferriday Little Boys League 1957 season is going into its final week of regular season play, with plans being made for tournament play, and hopes running high that an All-Star team from the league can go all the way to Columbus, Miss. The league has been divided this season, with two teams running strong, and the other two being weak. The team standings for the second half season are as follows:

Team	W	L
Serio Jitney Jungle Braves	5	1
Kiwanis Indians	5	1
Webber Red Sox	2	4
P'nack-Pik Quick Blues	0	6

The Serio Jitney Jungle Braves won the first-half season championship and will automatically be the league champions if they come out on top in the second half. If the Kiwanis Indians win the second half, there will be a play off for the championship.

There have been 11 home runs hit during the year, with Lefty Knight of the Braves being the leading home run hitter with 4. Lefty hit the first homer of the year, and is the only one to hit two in one game. Ronald Jeter of the Braves and George Fedric of the Indians follow him with two each. Dennis Jones and George West of the Braves and John Richey of the Indians of the Indians have each belted one out of the park.

OOLITIC, Ind. (UP)—Fred Walden complained to a justice of the peace that a neighbor jumped over his four-foot fence and salted his petunias. Bur Mrs. Lily Lawyer, 55, said "I'm too old and stiff to jump even a three-foot fence."

Japs Protest Expansion Of U. S. Air Base

TACHIKAWA, Japan (AP)—Japanese government surveyors today completed their work at the big U.S. Tachikawa air base. More than 1,000 policemen held back demonstrators protesting expansion of the base.

No American air police were involved.

A spokesman said no further surveys will be necessary for renewal of leases on lands where runways will be enlarged to accommodate the newest jet fighters and bombers.

Villagers who own the land claim the Japanese government does not pay them nearly enough for leasing it.

The Japanese spokesman said the government would negotiate with the owners for about two acres needed for the runway expansion. If no agreement is reached, he added, the land will be condemned.

The final surveys were completed in a drizzling rain. At one point about 150 student demonstrators crawled under the fence surrounding the base.

Sullivan Tough Boss, Says Aide

By CARMINE SANTULLO
Written For United Press

NEW YORK, (UP)I've known and worked with my boss, Ed Sullivan, for 23 years. We met first when he played his second week in Vaudeville at Loew's State Theatre on Broadway.

I was a kid then, working backstage, and I used to take his column from the theatre over to the New York Daily News. Twenty three years later, I'm still doing that, and a variety of other things, too.

What sort of a man is Ed Sullivan? Well, offhand, I'd say that he is an incredible worker with an enormous power of concentration and a tremendous competitive instinct. TV was made to order for him. His experience in Vaudeville and in staging World War II shows at Madison Square Garden and in military hospitals equipped him with a keep knowledge of acts and performers that was to come in hand in TV. Couple that background with his ability to get along well with all sorts of people plus his good taste and you have it, in a nutshell.

Quick Decisions

He can also be a pain in the neck to those who work with him closely.

Because he makes decisions quickly, always has since I knew him, he expects everybody else to work with equal swiftness. For nine solid years, he's had to put on 52 shows a year plus everything else he must do, so, every June I start dusting out the storm cellar. June is generally the month when his nerves get frazzled.

This June was no exception. How did I handle him? Just took him in stride. If he looked icily at me, I looked back with equal frigidity. Or I just said that I was going out to get a sandwich.

Usually, that night, I'll get a call at my house. "Carmine, if I acted rudely today, please forgive me. My nerves were bouncing."

You can't stay mad at a guy like that. Particularly so, because in all the basic things, he is 100 per cent.

He is very sentimental. Not long ago, he got all of his work finished in advance so he could go down to Fred Waring's Shawnee-on-the-Delaware inn to play in a one-day golf tournament. This was to be a big vacation. But on the same night, his home town, Port Chester, N. Y., was honoring the high school baseball team. So he played the round of golf, jumped into his car and drove almost 100 miles to get to Port Chester to make his speech at 8:30 p.m.

Right On Time

He didn't have his shower, didn't have his dinner, but he was there on the dot. Without even being there, I know he signed hundreds of autographs enthusiastically and made every player on the team feel he was getting a genunine thrill out of meeting them. And he was.

Since I first met him, Ed always has thought big. He never seemed to be vastly concerned about money. Long before anyone on TV ever signed acts for big salaries, he did it quite casually. He signed Elvis Presley for $50,000 because he certain it would pay off in excitement for a nine-year old show. It certainly did. He gave Sonja Heinie $13,000 to skate three minutes in her TV debut. The reason NBC has had rough sleding with my boss is that he isn't a penny pincher.

Nehru Cites Ways To Ease World Tensions

NEW YORK (AP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru says a friendly approach between nations and "progress on the lines of disarmament" are needed to ease present world tensions.

The psychological moment has come to use such an approach to "break through these various ice barriers or iron barriers" separating nations, Nehru declared.

The Prime Minister's remarks, telecast yesterday, were recorded July 1 at a TV interview in London, where he attended the British Commonwealth conference.

Nehru said the general atmosphere of the five-power disarmament talks now under way in London appears to indicate "an approach to an approach is being made."

Asked how he thought the participation of other nations would affect the current arms talks, he said: "I think it is far better for the present talks to yield result than for others to be added on at this stage and bring in a new element—maybe of help, but it may also be of confusion."

"It is the major powers that have to come to an agreement," he said. Russia has been pressing the Western Allies to invite India to take part in the talks.

Nehru said that by "friendly approach" he meant an approach to a policy, rather than a policy itself.

"What I mean," he said, "is a friendly approach to countries, even our opponents, so as to try to win them over . . . If the approach is friendly, the response is more than likely to be friendly."

In response to a question, Nehru said he detected a "toning down" of Red aggressiveness in Russia and Communist China.

Report Chinese Students Begin Resistance Move

TAIPEI (AP) — The official Chinese Nationalist Central News Agency reported today that university students in different parts of mainland China have started a movement to overthrow the Chinese Communist regime.

There was no way of confirming the report, which was carried under a Hong Kong dateline. The agency did not give the source of the report, but it claims to have private contacts in Red China.

Students at Fuh Tan University, in Shanghai, have demanded the resignation of Communist boss Mao Tze-tung, the agency said.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — UP — J. P. Jerro of Ruston, La., was killed near here Sunday when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his automobile. The highway patrol said the 37-year-old Negro's automobile slammed into a truck, killing Jerro instantly. The truck driver was not injured.

RAPS FORECASTERS

Sheriff Re-Kindles Audrey Warning Row

NEW ORLEANS — UP — The controversy over the U.S. Weather Bureau's handling of hurricane Audrey flared anew today after Sheriff O. B. Carter of disaster-stricken Cameron parish added another blast at the bureau's prediction of the storm.

Carter said the weather bureau made a 12-hour mistake in forecasting the hurricane which devastated the west Louisiana coast. He said residents were told about 10 p.m. the night before the storm there was "no cause for alarm," and a few hours later it was too late for them to flee.

The sheriff's comments followed criticism of the weather bureau by Louisiana Sens. Allen J. Ellender and Russell Long and Rep. T. A. Thompson (D-La.), whose district includes Cameron. Thompson said he would ask for an investigation of the bureau.

Deaths At 316

The known dead in the Cameron area jumped to 316 with the recovery of five more bodies Sunday by combined helicopter - marsh buggie search teams. The official missing list stands at 116. Over a hundred bodies are still unidentified.

In a filmed interview over a New Orleans television station, Carter said in referring to the weather bureau's controversial storm warnings:

"Anybody can make a mistake. That's only human."

Raps "White Washing"

But he said he didn't like the way the weather bureau was trying to "whitewash" its predictions which Carter said were in error.

Carter admitted that some Cameron residents would not have left even with adequate warning, but said many would have fled if they had been more accurately warned.

Ellender said on a radio broadcast Saturday the havoc of hurricane Audrey clearly shows the need for "some improvement in our hurricane warning system." He said the bureau apparently lost track of the hurricane.

State Rep. Alvin Dyson of Cameron said in the TV interview that he had not planned to leave Cameron for the storm but was going to send some of his family out of the area.

He said when he awoke that morning, it was too late to leave, so he sent his family to the courthouse, one of the few structures to survive the 105-mile-an-hour winds and high waves.

Dyson was trapped in his home when he returned from taking his family to the courthouse. He clung to the rafters while his house was carried nearly a half mile from its foundations by rampaging, wind-pushed waters.

Hits Bureau

Sen. Long charged after a visit to the Cameron area last week that the weather bureau was guilty to failing to give residents of the coastal regions enough warning time.

Thompson said residents "were lulled into a false sense of safety" by the weather bureau advisories.

The congressman said he would ask for an investigation to "determine just what lines in the storm reporting system failed."

"We know there was a failure," he said.

Cleanup Continues

While controversy flared over the weather bureau, disaster workers continued their 18th straight day of reconstruction and rehabilitation work without a break.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Mazille of Calcasieu parish, bordering Cameron, said the systematic air-ground search for bodies was about over.

Of the last five bodies brought in, he said two were taken from a pick up truck in which the victims apparently were caught while fleeing the storm.

Mazille said the cleanup of dead cattle was complete. Thousands of animals are still scattered in uninhabitated sections, he said, but these would be left alone.

Officials estimated 60,000 of Cameron's 85,000 head of cattle perished in the storm.

9 Negroes Killed In Miss. Wreck

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—A flaming two-car collision killed nine persons yesterday and critically injured the only survivor. It was Mississippi's worst traffic accident on record.

Four of the dead were pinned in a car that burst into flames. Two others were thrown clear of the burning wreckage. Three were in the car with the only survivor, Howard Willingham, 20-year-old Taylor, Miss., man reported in critical condition at an Oxford hospital.

Highway patrolmen said all 10 were Negroes.

Patrolman M. Q. Parks said skid marks showed the car driven by Whitson Willingham, 25, Oxford, was in the wrong lane. The autos crashed on a straight stretch of State Highway 16 at 2:30 a.m. Parks said visibility was good.

Also killed in Willingham's car were Olive Wood, 24, Taylor, and Oreese King, 18, Oxford.

The dead in the other car were Willie Mae Houston, 21, Tom Hamilton, 27, both of Oxford; Dolphus Young, 25, Junior Atwaits, 19, Eddie Austin, 19, all of Abbeville; and Reese Watley, 19, Chicago, Ill.

Next time you prepare instant lemon pudding, add a little grated lemon rind to it for fresh flavor.

BEFORE THREAT

Moslems Begin Bairam Feast

CAIRO (AP)—Millions of Moslem faithful today began the five-day Bairam feast amid calls for Arab unity to face the "mounting threat of imperialism" in Algeria and the disputed Gulf of Aqaba.

The call came as more than 500,000 worshippers from all over Asia and the Middle East massed in the Holy City of Mecca, Saudi Arabia, to observe the great pilgrimage or Hajj—one of the five pillars of Islam required of all Moslems able to make the journey.

The holy occasion prompted messages from Moslem leaders in Syria, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and other Arab states assailing the common Israeli foe.

Syria's President Shukri Kuwatly appealed in a broadcast from Damascus for "reinforced Arab unity." He assailed U.S. policy on both the Algerian and Aqaba issues.

"American officials who imagined they can gamble with the affairs of the Arab people . . . placed all their potentialities in the service of imperialism and international zionism," Kuwatly said.

Saudi Arabian Minister of State Ahmed Shukairy called for withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force from the Egyptian shore of the Aqaba Gulf, contending it serves only to shield Israeli shipping using the gulf. The Arabs contend the gulf is Arab territorial water and should be closed to Israel-bound ships.

The Cairo paper Al Akhbar reported the Egyptian government is preparing a detailed memorandum denying Israel's right to use the gulf.

GOES TO DOGS

LIVERPOOL, England (UP) — When an ambulance took Miss Mabel Lambie, 73, to a hospital here, seven other ambulances had to tag along too. They were sent by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to pick up 30 dogs. The pooches had nobody to look after them while Miss Lambie was in the hospital.

Scientists Gather For Atomic Talks

PUGWASH, N. S. (AP)—Twenty-four of the world's leading scientists assembled in this little Nova Scotia fishing village today to discuss ways to prevent man from destroying himself with atomic weapons.

The group from 11 nations on both sides of the Iron Curtain is meeting in a room normally used by kindergarten pupils of the Pugwash school.

The scientists are guests of Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland industrialist, at his family home here. They include A. V. Topchiev, general scientific secretary of the Soviet Academy of Sciences; Chou Peiyuan, vice rector of Red China's Peiping University; Prof. Leo Szilard of Chicago, who helped set up the first nuclear chain reaction; Dr. Hideki Yukawa of Tokyo, Nobel Prize winner in physics; and Prof. J. Rotblat of London, vice president of the Atomic Scientists Assn.

With them are physicists, biologists, chemists and other scientists from Australia, Austria, Canada, France, India and Poland.

At a preliminary session yesterday, the group decided the talks would be private. To ensure this, they agreed that no one should be interviewed.

Rotblat told reporters the scientists are meeting "for private and informal discussions about the problems raised by the development of nuclear weapons."

By for and about Women

MARY HAYWORTH

Psychiatrist's Wife Floored By His Interest In Another Woman

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is a psychiatrist and I am a registered nurse, with a college education and many hobbies and cultural interests. We have a child age 10.

During the past year my husband has been interested in a secretary at his place of work—a woman who is married, separated and the mother of three children: ages 21, 14 and 10. Of recent months he claims to be in love with her—in love with a woman for the first time, he says. This floors me. Although we've had our normal quarrels, I never felt that our relationship lacked love. (He says he married me to spite his family.)

He has spent a good deal on entertainment of this woman, he admitted when pressed; but this has stopped since I revised our household budget so that there's nothing left over to squander. He claims he just sees her in the daily routine, taking her to and from work. But they also share little trips and excursions, and he is very attentive to her needs.

Self-Control Is Anguish

Me he ignores. He eats at home and sleeps here; but is out most of the time, either working or reading at the library—so he says. Once he mentioned divorce, which I refused; and he realizes he mustn't hurt our child.

I have what doctors diagnose as multiple sclerosis, although I seem to be in excellent health at present. When I asked Sam how he answered this one in his mind, he replied "That's your baby."

I have tried to steel myself to accept the fact that if this is the way he wants to live, this is the way it shall be—for as long as he supports the child and me. But golly, it's mental torture. Isn't there some way out of this? What is your advice? —K.R.

Love Involves Will, Not Mood

DEAR K. R.: It probably is true that your husband hasn't really loved you; and that he married you for negative compulsive reasons—tied up with family conflicts in his background.

All of which is no disparagement of you, necessarily—except as it may reflect upon your judgment, in figuratively betting your life on him! (When possibly he wasn't worth it.)

Love isn't a matter of mood; for moods are ever-changing. Enduring love is an expression of character—of will, and purpose, and innate capacity to sympathize with, and protect and cherish other persons. When an individual doesn't "love" an intimate associate dependably, it isn't because the associate isn't "acceptable." Rather it is because the non-loving person is somehow defective in his humanity; he lacks the wherewithal to be adequately related in spirit to the associate.

True Devotion Fueled By Need

Had your husband ever loved you, with genuine devotion and loving-kindness, he simply couldn't and wouldn't abandon you emotionally, when you are haunted by baffling intermittent illness. Rather he would care about you more poignantly than before—with a love more mature, even though perhaps more impersonal, that transcends the ordinary "lovemaking" sentiment keyed to mutual approval of human attractiveness.

Both you and your husband are ashamed and afraid to face the question of how much your illness contributes to his disloyalty. Actually he is a turncoat because of it, I think. Not because his secretary is his soulmate; or a femme fatale in her own right. She isn't. In emphasizing that he never loved you, he is simply whitiewashing his ignobility in having no love to give you in illness.

Morally Tested, Man Flunks Out

Tested on the score of "for better, for worse," his manhood, his honor, simply bilge out. He hasn't got the stuff of character to be your moral support in crisis. And by his failure you are shamed and oppressed too. You feel guiltily unlovable, without a shred of appeal or defense—not recognizing how much his poverty stricken personality contributes to the rift.

What to do? Don't steel yourself to accept things "as is"; but don't try to change your circumstances either. Peace of mind is from God—also it is the climate in which miracles transpire. It is a by-product of true perspective (of seeing all life as immortal in essence), and of right direction in living—recognizing ourselves as pilgrims and God as our goal. For guidance you might read "The Fruits of the Spirit" (Longmans Green) by Evelyn Underhill; or "The Secret of Happiness" (Doubleday) by Billy Graham. M.H.

ACNE SPOILS DATES

Q.—Daar Peggy: My mother suggested I write you because I'm simply desperate. My skin looks so bad with acne pimples that it just spoils every date for me. Some of my friends have them, too, but mine are worse. Isn't there anything I can take, or put on my face that might help?—Dianne.

A.—Most teen-agers have this trouble but it can be helped. I suggest a new type bleaching cream that is both antiseptic and greaseless. It is called NADINOLA De Luxe and you use it as a cleanser instead of soap and water, use it morning and evening and wipe off with tissue. NADINOLA De Luxe cleans off excess oiliness and dirt and gets the skin surface almost surgically clean. This speeds the healing of bumps and spots and gently bleaches the little darkening that shows up between, and the antiseptic stops the surface spreading of pimple infection. I predict that your skin will improve wonderfully in just a few days if you use NADINOLA De Luxe according to directions. It comes in 2 sizes 69c and $1.25 and is guaranteed . . . Peggy Allen.

A little sugar, added to the milk-and-egg mixture in which you dip bread when you are making French toast, helps the slices brown.

For a really creamy custard, use egg yolks rather than whole eggs. Two egg yolks are usually substituted for one whole egg.

Save out a couple of tablespoons of condensed tomato soup, before you dilute it, and add it to a beef stew. Helps give good flavor!

Every Woman Can Be A Cleopatra

By WOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—Ceil Chapman, high priestess of all-out glamor, says every woman can be a Cleopatra this winter, and to prove it shows a dazzling collection of cocktail and evening gowns with calculated allure.

Ceil today showed her prize shocker — black crepe cocktail sheath, cunningly fitted and draped, with long, tight sleeves and a neckline slashed to the waist, bordered in discreet jewels and laced, so that, as Ceil explained, "you can let your conscience be your guide." Laced up tight, the dress can be as demure as a Sunday school costume. With the laces loosened it can provide sensational exposure.

"This has its own build-in bra," explains Mrs. Chapman, "so you don't need to worry about a thing."

On the same theme is a companion piece, also in slithery black crepe, deftly draped, only this one is high in front, low in back, and cut out over the ribs. At first glance it looks discreet. At second glance—oh my!

Pauline Trigere also provided top fashion news today by bringing back high, crushed collars for the first time in a generation, and showing them on evening gowns, of all things. An example is a brown chiffon dinner dress with long sleeves and a crushed collar to the chin. This brought spontaneous applause from editors viewing the collection, and is designed for wide popularity among women who want to hide crepy necks.

Trigere also shows tube-jacket suits, smooth and easy, the jackets almost tunic length, but relaxed and unfitted. One-piece dresses are in the "laisser faire" silhouette — with no waistline at all.

EMILY POST

If Divorced Parents Friendly Proper To Attend Son's Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it out of order for a second wife to go with her husband to the wedding of her husband's son? This would necessitate seeing the first wife and also her relatives, who might resent the second wife even though she had nothing whatever to do with the rift. The wife in question feels that her place is with her husband on this occasion. Under the circumstances, would it be proper for the second wife to go with her husband or should they both stay home or should the husband go alone?

Answer: If the parents have remained friendly, it would be entirely proper for the bridegroom's father and his present wife to go to the church and the reception too. If they have not remained friendly and their appearance at the wedding would cause distress to the bridegroom's mother, they would go to the church only, where they would both be seated in the third pew on the groom's side of the church.

Fur Trimming In Summer

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been invited to a wedding the end of this month. I have a beige chantilly lace dress with a scoop neckline trimmed with mink about one half inch wide. The dress has short sleeves and they also have a narrow band of mink trimming. Will it be proper to wear at this time? I have had so many pros and cons about it because of the fur trim that I have decided to write and ask your opinion about it.

Answer: Fur trim now is out of season but if you wear this dress because it is very becoming to you, I don't think anyone will criticize you.

Inviting Fiance's Mother

Dear Mrs. Post: I am giving a large afternoon tea to announce my daughter's engagement. I would like to know if I should mail a written invitation to the mother of my daughter's fiance, or if I should call her on the telephone and invite her personally. I would like to know also if I should give her a corsage. She will be in the receiving line.

Answer: Your telephoned invitation is sufficient and better than a written one. A corsage is not necessary.

Do you find it difficult to introduce your family or friends? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet E-17, "Introductions," includes what to say and how to answer to an introduction. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c-o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

'Scared Stiff' To Ask Her Teacher Sex Questions

Dear Mrs. Ricker: When I was six years old my mother was sent to a mental institution and I have not seen her since. I never loved her because she was not a mother, just a violent person who once tried to kill my father. There is no hope for her recovery.

My father resents me because my mother's condition started when I was born. He often tells me this. I love him in one way but hate him in another — for not loving me, I guess. He lets me do most anything but that's not what I want.

I am 12 years old and in the seventh grade. For a long time I have wanted to ask my teacher about sex and confide in her. She doesn't know about my mother but she has said that if anyone wanted to ask her something she would answer as if she were her mother.

But, I'm scared stiff and embarrassed and I just don't know how to go about this. Please tell me if I should ask and if so what I should say? Please, please, Mrs. Ricker, answer this letter soon. I need your advice so much. Thank you. Unloved M.

Dear "Unloved" M.:

It is difficult to believe that your father really resents you for what happened to your mother. You couldn't possbily be to blame. It was just one of those rare and tragic things which happen to people.

Your teacher may be a very kind and helpful person but since you are hesitant and embarrassed to ask her questions concerning sex here is what I suggest as an alternative. There is a book entitled, "Facts of Live and Love" for teen-agers. It was written by Evelyn Millis Duval and, in my opinion, it is the finest book of its kind. It will answer your questions and you will not have to run the risk of feeling embarrassed before your teacher.

The book is available at most public libraries or can be bought in book stores. The price is $3.50. There is also a pocket - sized edition for 25 cents which I have seen at newsstands, in super markets and drugstores. If you cannot find it, it can be ordered direct from the Association Press, 291 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y.

Caught Her Smoking, Now Mom Doesn't Trust Her

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am a 13-year - old girl and I've had the worst thing happen to me! Recently my mother caught me smoking and now she doesn't trust me. I don't make a habit of smoking I was just trying them out. Ugh! I really can be trusted when I'm out and Mother used to have faith in me. How can I explain to her that I have learned my lesson and have her trust me once again?

Truly Sorry

Dear Truly Sorry:

It is nothing new for youngsters to have a 'sneak try' at smoking. I have heard my grandmother, and father, too, tell of going "behind the barn" and smoking corn silk and other various concoctions.

However, I think it is a mistake for teen - ager to smoke since it can be harmful to their health.

Judging by your letter you do not make a habit of doing sneaky, underhanded things so, if you are "truly sorry," I think Mother should give you another chance. Just because a person breaks a trust once is not proof he should always be considered untrustworthy. I suggest you show this column to your mother and perhaps she will feel differently about the whole episode. I hope so.

This column is conducted for teen - agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only — as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of this paper.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

Elvis Presley May Soon Enlist With U. S. Army

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Notebook: Elvis Presley soon may startle one and all by seeking to enlist in the army. He's irked by the "why-aren't-you-in-uniform?" fan mail he's been receiving . . . Art Ford's determination to be the toughest of the "Night Beat" interviewers has lost him several guest stars. His good friend Edward Mulhare backed out at the last minute, and other pals have appealed to him to go easy when they face the cameras . . . Corinne Calvet and her spouse, Jeffrey Stone are writing an unhappy ending. She's telling her troubles to ex - husband John Bromfield . . . The producers of "Les Girls" are so excited over Cole Porter's inspiring score for the film, the original billing plan has been changed and Cole's name will appear over the picture's title . . . Sherman Billingsley, owner of the world's most famous night club — the Stork — has received an average of six death threats a day for the past month.

Steve Allen has signed Marie McDonald to warble a couple of ditties on his Aug 4 show — result of her hit in Las Vegas . . . End of an era: One of the authentic West Indian calypso artists just filed for unemployment insurance in New York . . . Bookies report nothing but lethargy in connection with the betting on the Patterson-Jackson fight. They say they can't recall when a heavyweight championship bout inspired such stupefying lack of interest.

Harold E. Stassen plans to resign from his administration post as soon as current disarmament talks in London are ended. The White House does not intend to fill the vacancy with a new appointment; Stassen's duties will turned over to Vice President Nixon, alding strength to his build - up for the 1960 presidential nomination.

The recently - divorced Janis Page is dating Bob Calhoun . . . Some of the female visitors to Gotham are wearing the shortest shorts seen in many a midtown Summer, and the police—possibly to preserve the city's reputation for hospitality — seem to be looking the other way . . . Gladys Swarthout is recovering rapidly from her recent serious operation . . . Bubbles (of the famous Buck 'n' Bubbles dancing team) is in line to play the Bill Robinson role in Bojangles' life story.

If you're easily confused, skip the news that Hecht - Hill - Lancaster have purchased the rights to a book called "The Unforgiven," which will be serialized in a national magazine under the title "Kiowa Moon," released to the cinema palaces as "The Siege at Dancing Bird."

"Auntie Mame," one of Broadway's giant hits, is having air-conditioning trouble. A few hot nights ago several customers left after the first act, although they loved the show and Rosalind Russell's performance . . . Chaps in the office buildings surrounding Radio City Music Hall are wondering if it's progress after all. The rooftop on which the pretty Rockettes used to sunbathe have been usurped by huge clumps of machinery, so this year, instead of couches adorned with decorative females, they'll just have world-of - the - future - looking air-conditioning equipment to gaze at.

Although the French government refused to allow Jose Ferrer to film exteriors for "I Accuse" in Paris, he still hopes to conquer the Gallic taboo against pictures based on the Dreyfuss case. As an icebreaker, he'll wine and dine important officials over there, following the parties with special showing of the movie.

Jimmy Dorsey's band is staying intact for the time being — same personnel, same management — with Lee Castle conducting. The hit recording of "So Rare" has made teh orchestra a hot property . . . Daphne Fairbanks, Doug's debutante daughter, is having London dates with a piano player named Peter Garlick . . . Producer Raphael Hakim has finally been able to discard the crutches he's been using ever since he injured his leg in the most elegant mishap of the season. (He fell while running for an elevator at the Plaza.)

ADOPTION DECISION TODAY

Hildy's Legal Struggle Nears End

ENTER COURT — Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ellis enter circuit court in Miami with foster daughter Hildy for adoption hearing. Hildy has been the center of a religious controversy because she is the natural daughter of a Catholic mother. The Ellises are Jewish. (AP Wirephoto.)

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A long legal struggle by the foster parents of 6-year-old Hildy McCoy was expected to end today with a Circuit Court ruling on whether they can adopt the cute, freckle-faced child.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ellis have had Hildy with them almost from her birth. The 45-year-old foster father and his wife, 35, are Jewish. Hildy was born to a Roman Catholic mother.

The State of Massachusetts and Hildy's natural mother, Mrs. Marjorie McCoy Doherty of Hingham, Mass., want Hildy brought up by a Catholic family.

Evoked Comments

A Massachusetts law provides that children shall be raised in the faith of their natural parents. Both the state and Mrs. McCoy served notice last week that they would be represented in court today.

During all the controversy, which has evoked numerous comments from churchmen and laymen on the religious and human implications involved, Hildy has been pretty much shielded from close contact with the dispute.

She was expected to appear today with the Ellises, however, under the presiding justice's policy of having children attend adoption proceedings.

The Florida State Welfare Board has found the foster parents "good and worthy people" and has recommended that they be allowed to adopt Hildy.

Lived In Maine

The Ellises six weeks ago won a momentous round in their fight to keep Hildy when Florida Gov. Leroy Collins refused to extradite them to Massachusetts to face technical charges of kidnaping.

Ellis gave up his business in Boston and fled Massachusetts with his wife and Hildy more than two years ago rather than comply with court rulings that he must give up the child.

The couple lived in Maine and New York, with Ellis working at a variety of jobs to support the three.

Last year Massachusetts authorities learned the Ellises were living at Miami Beach. The couple's arrest followed but they were allowed to retain Hildy while the extradition issue was threshed out.

6-YEAR FIGHT

Cancer Squabble Taken To Public

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK, (UP)—According to one recognized cancer expert, a substance he has never seen caused some cancers to disappear and pulled their victims back from the brink of the grave.

As you scarcely need to be told, that is what hundreds of scientists at a cost of many millions of dollars have been looking for these many years.

But according to almost all if not all other recognized cancer experts, this substance has done and will do no such thing and is, in fact, worthless.

There you have the heart of a bitter fight which has been raging inside cancer research science for almost six years—a fight of one cancer scientist against almost all if not all his colleagues.

The fight now is being taken into the arena of the general public where there are no recognized cancer experts but only people who long for something — anything—which works against cancer and through taxes and contributions pay, gladly, most of the high costs of cancer research.

Reader Becomes Judge

Whether or not you feel up to it, as a non-expert, you're going to be asked to judge the merits of the fight and influence the outcome—if you haven't been asked already. The askers are the one embattled scientist and an organized group of earnest, convinced non-experts led by Gloria Swanson, the film star.

The scientist is Dr. Andrew Conway Ivy, professor of physiology and head of the department of clinical science, University of Illinois. The substance is called "Krebiozen."

His contentions are:

Krtbiozen has been tried in hunreds of cancer patients and demonstrated to be "biologically active" against cancer.

The studies of the activity of Krebiozen in cancer patients made in 1951 and 1952 under the auspices of the American Medical Asson. and the University of Illinois (which found Krebiozen to be more or less worthless) were contaminated by bias, ignorance, and downright dishonesty. Therefore, they proved nothing.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called *Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

HAZADOUS BLIND CORNER

A Monroe motorist cranes her neck to negotiate a "blind corner." Hedge rows and other shrubs make many of Monroe's intersections a constant threat to safety. Residents who love flowers and shubs often overlook the hazards they create by planting too close to a corner. Billboard and sign posters are also serious violators. (Staff Photo by John Oldenburg.)

Bee Flies Into Judges Mouth, Stings, Escapes

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — A ring judge was calling instructions at a dog show when he suddenly threw his hands to his mouth.

Eyes all over the arena flicked from champion dogs to Milo D. Pearsall of Holdbrook, N.Y. As they watched, a bee appeared at Pearsall's mouth, stung his upper lip and buzzed away.

Pearsall said the bee first stung the inside of his throat, after flying into his mouth. He was treated by a doctor and continued his duties, apparently suffering no ill effects.

If you want your coffee-cake loaf (made with yeast) to have a crisp crust, try brushing it with slightly-beaten egg white about 10 minutes before it has finished baking.

Eight persons met violent death in the northeast Louisiana area during the Fourth of July holiday.

Four persons drowned. They were Leroy Hayes, 25, Bonita, who drowned Sunday; Winston Sawyer, 16, Bastrop, Rebecca Jackson, 16, Negro, of Tallulah; Lillie Mae Johnson, 12, Negro, of Delhi Fourth of July drowning victims.

Traffic fatalities were Marion M Boone, 19, of Jonesboro-Hodge and J. P. Jerro, Negro teacher at Lake Providence School of Ruston; both died Sunday.

Earl Green, 49, of Winn parish, was found fatally injured on a roadside in West Carroll parish Wednesday nigh, and died several hours later. Death was attributed to a fractured skull.

Mrs. Cordelia Randolph, 78, of Good Will, suffered fatal burns Wednesday when a butane stove exploded in her trailer home. She died Saturday in a Monroe hospital.

Hayes drowned in 11 feet of water on the Rosco Ramier place north of Mer Rouge as he swam alone, according to Morehouse parish sheriff's office. He was married and the father of three children.

The Sawyer youth, who lived with his grandmother in the Log Cabin Community near Bastrop, drowned as he attempted to swim across Bayou Bartholomew.

Rebecca Johnson drowned in Lake One Extension five miles west of Tallulah while swimming with her sisters and several friends. The investigating Madison parish sheriff's department reported she became excited and submerged in about 12 feet of water.

The Delhi girl drowned on the Hubb McDaris plantation eight miles north of the Richland parish town when she waded off into a deep channel in a pond. Deputy Audrey McKinney said she could not swim.

Boone died Sunday morning after apparently falling asleep at the wheel of his car in Natchitoches parish two miles south of Chestnut. The car landed in a barrow pit. He died of head injuries.

Two youths riding with Boone were identified as William H. Rooks, 19, and Phillip Dale George, 19, both of Oklahoma City, Okla. They were visiting in Jonesboro.

According to the Jackson parish sheriff's office, the George youth was hospitalized with slight injuries while Rooks was uninjured.

According to information received in Ruston, Jerro was en route home from Alabama when he sideswiped a truck Sunday. He died shortly afterwards.

Green's death is still under investigation by West Carroll parish authorities. He was found lying on the side of a road two miles north of Forest after several passing motorists reported seeing him walking on the shoulder of the road.

All evidence pointed to foul play, authorities said, but they had been unable to determine the exact nature of the incident that brought about his death.

Mrs. Randolph suffered burns over 60 per cent of her body when a butane stove exploded in her trailer. She had maintained the trailer home in the yard of her daughter, Mrs. Pangburn, near Delhi.

Negro Takes Over Methodist Pulpit In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new Negro pastor of a formerly all-white Methodist church wiped away the tears and told his overflow congregation of 1,000:

"I am overwhelmed with joy. I can say only thanks."

Yesterday was the Rev. Nelson Burlin Higgins Jr.'s first day in the pulpit of the Normandie Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. His appointment — which touched off a walkout by most of the white parishioners—was announced last month by Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy of the Southern California-Arizona Methodist Conference.

It was the first appointment of a Negro as pastor of an all-white church in the conference.

Church Dying

The 50-year-old church is in an interracial district. In 1937 it had 253 white members. By last month it had 43.

Two thirds resigned after the appointment of the Negro pastor.

Bishop Kennedy said recently it was necessary ei her to close the "dying" church or serve the community. The office of the superintendent of the Methodist Church's Los Angeles district said appointing a Negro pastor would make the church interracial.

Yesterday's congregation included white members of many other Los Angeles area Methedist churches on hand to give the Rev. Mr. Higgins a good sendoff and support the interracial idea.

Half And Half

The crowd was about half white and half Negro. It filled the choir room and fellowship hall and sat outdoors in the shade of a sycamore listening to a public-address system. Television cameras aired the service.

The 40-year-old pastor said in his sermon on "A Challenge": "God gives love where there was hate. Live outside of love and you live outside of divine love. My friends the challenge is yours. Will you meet it?"

Twelve persons were taken into membership at the close of the service.

Sex Obsession, Nuclear Weapons Threaten To Destroy World—Graham

NEW YORK (UP)—A combination of sexual obsession and nuclear weapons threatens to destroy civilization, evangelist Billy Graham warned Sunday night.

The revivalist told a packed Madison Square Garden audience of 19,200 persons that there has never been a generation so obsessed with sex as the present one.

That obsession, coupled with materialism and atomic weapons, Graham said, threatens to bring an end to the present world system.

"If any generation ever needed to prepare to meet thy God, it's this one," Graham said. "Especially the people of New York.

"One hydrogen bomb and you're done," he said.

Graham quoted atomic scientists as having said nobody would survive an atomic war. Their warnings, he said, tied in with scriptural prediction that the next judgment would come by fire.

"The Bible teachs that the world system was once destroyed and it can be done again," he said. "There are many signs to indicate that the end of the world may be near."

The North Carolina evangelist said sex and violence on television programs were having a bad influence on young people.

"The sex conditions are the same today as they were in Noah's day." He told a audience that included many standees.

After Graham's sermon 534 persons went forward to make "decisions for Christ," bringing to 29,369 the total during the New York crusade which began May 15.

Appearing with Graham were actress Dale Evans, the wife of cowboy star Roy Rogers and an Ecuadorian Indian girl, Dayhuma, 24, who has been converted to Christianity. She addressed the audience in her native language, which was translated by Rachel Saint, a missionary.

7 PERSONS KILLED IN FLAMING AUTO CRASH

SAUGUS, Calif., (AP) — Seven persons, including five members of one family, were killed yesterday in one of the worst auto crashes of the holiday weekend.

The fiery collision, involving a station wagon and a sedan, occurred in a canyon about 18 miles north of this Los Angeles County community. Robert M. Burleson, 48, a tool and die firm operator from Culver City, was returning from Reno, Nev., in the station wagon with his wife and three of their children. Dr. Floyd A. Svec, 40, and Henry G. Smallbrook, 68, both of Los Angeles, were on a business trip in the car.

Sheet Of Flames

The two vehicles collided near a curve in the highway. A witness said the fuel tank of the station wagon exploded and a sheet of flames swirled over the wreckage of the two cars.

The witness, Ray Edwards of Tujunga, said the burned bodies of Dr. Svec and Smallbrook were lying near their car when he pulled up at the scene. Burleson was lying near the station wagon. His wife Lucille 21 and the three children—Juley, 9 months; Brynn Francis, 5 a girl, and Fred Lee, 2 — were piled in the front seat of the station wagon.

The California highway patrol said the sedan, driven by Smallbrook, apparently skidded out of control on the curve and slammed broadside into the oncoming station wagon.

FARM REPORT

Upland Cotton Acreage Down 15 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department said today the acreage of upland cotton in cultivation July 1 totaled 14,224,000 acres, a decrease of 15 per cent from last year.

The department made no forecast on production, but at average acre yields of the past two years the reported acreage would produce about 11,380,000 bales.

Acreage in cultivation July 1, 1956, was 16,833,000, and for the 10-year (1946-55) average it was 22,747,000. Production last year was 13,310,000 bales compared with 13,098,000 for the 10-year average.

By States

This year's crop, like last year's, is being grown under rigid federal planting allotments and marketing quotas and a soil bank plan offering farmers payments for underplanting allotments. These programs are designed to prevent continued overproduction.

The acreage of upland cotton in cultivation on July 1 by states and the percentage that acreage represented of last year's area in cultivation, respectively, included:

North Carolina 360,000 acres or 79 per cent of a year ago; South Carolina 510,000 or 73; Georgia 590,000 or 69; Tennessee 490,000 or 88; Alabama 750,000 and 75; Mississippi 1,400,000 and 85; Arkansas 1,165,000 and 83; Louisiana 470,000 and 80; and Texas 6,250,000 and 88.

Parole Violator, Teen-Age Friend Held For Robbery

NEW ORLEANS — UP— A 36-year-old parole violator and his 14-year-old girl companion were held in custody of New Orleans police today in connection with two armed holdups of taxi drivers here.

James J. Tauzin of New Orleans and the girl, whose name was not released, were apprehended in Laurel, Miss., Friday after they became involved in an argument with a Negro man who had given them a lift in his car.

Two New Orleans taxi drivers reported that they were robbed by a man on July 1. Both said a girl was driving the car in which the robber fled.

Tauzin served time at Angola for simple burglary and was wanted for parole violation.

The girl was placed in the House of Good Shepherd Convent after she told authorities she very much wanted to go to a convent or to be reunited with her father.

Ousted Chief Of Indonesia Forces Re-Claims Command

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Lt. Col. Ventje Sumual, who was fired as military commander of East Indonesia, claims he has assumed the post again on his own responsibility.

"Troops in East Indonesia still obey me," Sumual said in a speech to an East Indonesian youth council yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Abdul Harris Nasution, army chief of staff, dismissed Sumual a month ago because the colonel had staged a revolt demanding local autonomy for the Outer Islands of the republic. Nasution said he was taking over as military commander and Sumual would return to Jakarta for reassignment.

Instead, Sumual and local leaders in East Indonesia declared they were establishing six autonomous provinces in the area. Yesterday Sumual transferred his headquarters from South Celebes to Menado, capital of the newly established North Celebes province.

OVER HOLIDAY

Area Records No Traffic Deaths

Traffic mishaps in the Twin Cities and northeast Louisiana caused no fatalities and seven injuries, law enforcement agencies reported today. Most of the injuries were termed "minor."

Troop F headquarters, Louisiana state police, reported a total of 16 accidents with five injuries.

Monroe police department, traffic division, had record of only eight accidents involving one minor injury: while the West Monroe police department reported five accidents and one minor injury.

The heads of all three divisions, Capt. M. E. Kidd of the state troopers, Chief James C. Kelly, Jr., of Monroe and Chief Jeff Caldwell of West Monroe, in announcing the record expressed the appreciation to the motoring public for "heeding so well the traffic regulations and nothing the problems faced on the highways."

"We are particularly thankful that there were no traffic fatalities in this area," the three said in a joint statement. "And we hope that this will be an example for other holidays, and long week ends which will occur later this year and in years to come."

Expect D. A. To Seek Retrial Of Club Operator

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Boyce Holleman is expected to press a retrial of Aden S. Bellew, 49-year-old White Plains night club operator accused of murder in a Feb. 13 slaying.

Circuit Judge Leslie Grant ordered a mistrial Saturday when the jury reported a deadlock with one juror holding for acquittal.

Bellew was returned to county jail without bond and the case was continued to the December term of court.

Bellew is charged in the fatal shooting and pistol-whipping of Harry J. Geiss Jr., 33, Mississippi City, at the home of Mrs. Ruth Johnson, 28, Biloxi.

Testimony showed that Geiss shot to death after an assailant forced his way into the woman's home. Geiss was shot five times and beaten about the head.

Other testimony indicated Geiss was at his place of business five miles away at the time of the killing.

Mrs. Johnson, who had told officers shortly after the shooting that Bellew was the slayer, testified she was under threat to name Bellew. She said an unidentified man forced his way into her home and shot Geiss.

Assistant Unit Adviser Assigned To Reserve Here

Major Emil E. Wisakowsky has been assigned to the Selman Field Army reserve training center as assistant unit advisor, it was announced by Major George L. Whitmeyer, unit advisor for Army reserve activities in northeast Louisiana.

Major Wisakowsky was last assigned to the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Shiraz, Iran. He was artillery advisor to three division artillery units of the Iranian V Corps.

It was the responsibility of the Advisory Group staff members to instruct Iranian personnel in the use of American equipment, methods of training, establishment of an operations and training program, and in general, to modernize the Iranian army on lines patterned after those of the United States.

Wisagowsky went to Iran in April of 1956. Since he could not take his wife, Elva, and three children, Mercille, 10; Eugene, six; and Carolyn, four, to Shiraz, his tour of duty was set at 12 months.

Wisakowsky began military service in 1940 when he enlisted in the United States Army Air Force.

In 1942 he was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant of field artillery and returned to the Air Force for duty.

He reverted to master sergeant in 1947, but was recalled to active commission service in 1949 and sent to the Far East where he served three years.

After returning from Japan, Wisakowsky was stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., until 1956. At that time he was assigned to Iran.

Major Wisakowsky lives at 2005 Spencer with his wife and three children.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be remoistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAID's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONAID's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

Czech Reds Meet To Hear Story Of Malenkov Ouster

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press Staff Correspondent

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UP)—Czech Communists met throughout the country this weekend to hear the story of the Molotov affair before the arrival of Soviet party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev and premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The visit is a critically timed one, just five days after the soviet party Central Committee announced ouster of the "anti-party group" and obliterated from public Soviet life its three leaders—Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Lazar Kaganovich and Georgi Malenkov.

This same campaign of obliteration is now taking place in Czechoslovakia, and Communists met in farms and factories to discuss the move. Rude Pravo, the Czech Communist organ, reported 911 separate meetings in one province.

The Soviet leaders originally were scheduled to arrive in Prague on July 2, but apparently postponed their visit a week because of the Moscow political situation. In the meantime the Czech press reported great enthusiasm of the people of this country for the visit.

Rude Pravo said factory workers pledged themselves to greater efforts of production in honor of Bulganin and Khrushchev.

In an editorial it said, "The Soviet leaders are coming to us as comrades, as collaborators, as representatives of millions of Soviet people. Their visit will again confirm that our economy and our people will stand determinedly with the Soviet Union."

It was noted that one of the charges against the deposed Soviet leaders was that they opposed trips by Soviet leaders abroad and frequent trips to the Soviet Union of foreign dignitaries both from the West and the East. Under Josef Stalin, high Soviet leaders almost never went abroad.

Navy Receives Another Influx Of Dutchmen

KUTZTOWN, Pa. (AP)—The Navy received another battalion of Pennsylvania Dutchmen over the weekend as the annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival ended here.

For the third year in a row a Distlefink battalion was sworn into the Navy — this time 198 strong. "Mother Distlefink" was there to remind them of the shoofly pies awaiting their return from the Navy. She was Mrs. Elsie Mertz, Easton, Pa., who earned the title in a baking contest with other Pennsylvania Dutch women.

The "Distlefink" title comes from the name of the mythical bird which is a symbol of Pennsylvania Dutch culture.

Certainly Would Like To Commend Those Policemen

DALLAS (AP)—Mrs. T. H. Davenport was watching television last night when a copperhead several feet long slithered into the room. Mrs. Davenport called her husband, who called police, who killed the snake.

"I can say one thing," Mrs. Davenport said. "Those nice patrolmen who came out and got rid of the snake are certainly due to be commended. I didn't like that snake."

GATEWAY AT JAMBOREE — Boy Scouts put the finishing touches to a replica of Independence Hall as a gateway to the Philadelphia Scout council area at the fourth annual Scout Jamboree opening July 12 at Valley Forge. (AP Wirephoto.)

Town Ready For Scout Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—Jamboree City, a man-made temporary community built for Boy Scouts only, is ready today for the greatest gathering of American youth in the nation's history.

The Scout troops begin moving in tomorrow on the hallowed, historic rolling hills made famous by George Washington's Revolutionary War army.

Nearly 60,000 Boy Scouts and their adult leaders, ready and anxious to show off in-the-field scouting accomplishments, all pour into this city of 25,000 tents in the next three days. On Friday the day-and-night program of the fourth National Jamboree officially begins. It ends July 18.

The 3,000-acre canvas city, when fully occupied, will become Pennsylvania's 16th largest city.

Jamboree City has everything for comfortable living — and camping.

Besides the tents — the sleeping ones hold two Scouts each— there are roads and hospitals, water, power and telephone lines, post offices, snack bars, an inter-camp bus line and a daily camp newspaper.

O. B. Evenson, responsible for stocking the jamboree with provisions, says, "Never in modern times, even by the military, have 60,000 camped in one place and in a totally temporary city."

The statistics of operation are staggering. For instance:

Eight miles of pipe carry 1½ million gallons of water daily.

509,000 eggs will be consumed, washed down by 559,252 quarts of milk.

300 tons of charcoal briquets will be burned in cooking.

And 9½ million pieces of paper goods — cups, plates, spoons, napkins — will be used in the eating.

The Scouts each contribute $50 to the gigantic food bill.

Pastor Officiates At Strife-Torn Church

NEW YORK (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Herman S. Sidener officiated for the first time yesterday at the strife-torn Protestant Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Brooklyn.

One of those who received communion from him at the 8:30 a.m. service was the ousted rector, the Rev. William Howard Melish.

The Rev. Mr. Melish, who is still fighting in the courts against his ouster, also attended the 11 a.m. service. He was accompanied by his wife and their 10-year-old son Howard.

Things were outwardly calm at the 110-year-old church. But the discord between pro-Melish and anti-Melish parishioners was evidenced by two incidents.

Before the early mornng service, Cameron Beadle, head of the pro-Melish vestry, presented Dr. Sidener with a letter asking him to "go away in Christian humility."

At the later service — contrary to Dr. Sidener's request—the offering was taken by eight pro-Melish vestrymen. The collection was turned over to Dr. Sidener after the service in a polite dispute with Alex Munsell, treasurer of the pro-Melish vestry.

The parishioners have been split over the Rev. Mr. Melish for a decade. His opponents charge him with left-wing activities. He has repeatedly denied any Communist link.

The contest for the pulpit has been in various state courts for years. Dr. Sidener was installed as rector by Bishop James P. DeWolfe of the Long Island diocense on March 5, 1956. Dr. Sidener's selection by the vestry in office at that time and his installation were upheld June 24 by the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

The Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal, refused last Wednesday to stay the ouster of the Rev. Mr. Melish pending its decision on his appeal next fall. The high court, while barring him from the pulpit, said he and his family could continue residence in the church rectory pending the appeal.

The basic point in the court case is whether a legal quorum of the vestry was present when Dr. Sidener was chosen as rector to replace the Rev. Mr. Melish.

Yesterday's letter to Dr. Sidener from the pro-Melish forces said in part: "You come to a parish that did not choose you and does not want you. It will be impossible for you to create a valid pastoral relationship here. We call upon you to go away in Christian humility, and leave us in peace."

The letter said efforts to retain Dr. Sidener's ministry at the church were "doomed to failure."

When a newsman asked Dr. Sidener about the letter, he said, "I get a lot of letters and pay attention only to the important ones."

During the early morning service, Dr. Sidener requested Lewis G. Reynolds, senior warden of the anti-Melish vestry, to take up the offering. Reynolds asked two ushers to assist him, but they declined. He then passed the plate alone.

At the later service, Dr. Sidener again asked Reynolds to take the collection. Eight pro-Melish vestrymen then stepped out and passed the collection plates.

After the service, Munsell of the pro-Melish vestry offered the collection in a bag to Dr. Sidener as both stood before the altar. Dr. Sidener declined the offer. He said he had been "very explicit" in asking Reynolds to take the offering. "In a service, sir, I expect to be obeyed," Dr. Sidener said quietly.

At this point, the Venerable Edward Saunders, archdeacon of Brooklyn, who assisted at both services, came up to Dr. Sidener and Munsell. "If they're offering you money, take it," Archdeacon Saunders advised Dr. Sidener. Dr. Sidener then took the money from Munsell and handed it to Reynolds for deposit in a bank.

Dr. Sidener and the Rev. Mr. Melish shook hands politely during a coffee hour in the parish house after the late morning service.

The Rev. Mr. Melish told supporters that he and his family would "move freely among the congregation as worshippers" and he would make no attempt to interfere with Dr. Sidener's conduct of services pending the outcome of the court contest over the pulpit.

POLITICAL SHADOW

Southerners See Nixon As Civil Rights Culprit

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The political shadow Southern opponents prifess to fear most behind the civil rights bill is that cast by Vice President Nixon.

Nixon, a potential candidate for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination, took a leading part in helping place the House-passed civil rights bill directly on the Senate's calendar.

This action, taken by majority vote of the Senate, bypassed further delays in the Judiciary Committee and paved the way for efforts beginning today to get the measure actually before the Senate for an eventual vote.

Dixie Democrats are convinced, rightly or wrongly, that if Nixon had not indicated clearly his intention of going along with the short-cut move it might not have been made at all.

Nixon's cooperation in that move evidently was convinced the Southerners that the vice president would go all the way for enforcement of the civil rights bill if it is enacted and if he is in a position to do anything about that enforcement.

In that connection, the Southerners point to the always present possibility that Nixon might succeed to the presidency.

At this point, Nixon is looked upon by the southerners as just about as great a threat to their position as they believed former President Truman to be in 1948.

The Southerners think Nixon might be more inclined than President Eisenhower to go all out in enforcement if there is Dixie resistance to civil rights decisions by federal courts.

It can be said on good authority that was one of the reasons why Sen. Russell (D-Ga) raised such a vigorous protest in the Senate last week over the contention that the bill's terms would authorize the President to use troops to enforce school integration and desegregation in public places.

Atty. Gen. Brownell has denied there is any thought of using troops. Russell is reported to have told friends he had no fears on that score with regard to Eisenhower. But he is said to have added he is not so sure about Nixon.
